Arden R. Morgan Quits After Suspension Is Ordered—Complaints Against Handling of Funds.

EVEN CHECKS SAID
TO HAVE COME BACK

Also Is Alleged He Borrowed Money From Teachers—He Declines to Comment on Charges.

Arden R. Morgan, principal of Sherman School, resigned today after he was suspended on charges that he converted school funds to his personal use, borrowed money from teachers in his school, and issued personal checks without sufficient funds in the bank.

A review of the charges resulting in his suspension, ordered yesterday by Superintendent of Instruction Gerling, was to have been held by the Board of Education at its next regular meeting, Sept. 13, but was unnecessary by his resignation.

Morgan has been a teacher in St. Louis public schools for 39 years. He has been in charge of the Sherman School, 3324 Flad avenue, except for two years, 1903 to 1910, and the Wyman School. He is 61 years old.

Details of Charges.

Included in the charges against Morgan is the complaint of O. F. Finney, cashier of the school, that Morgan had cashed in his name $27,000 of checks, and that he had turned over to the principal $135 paid in by pupils as deposits for books and materials. Morgan was unable to refund the money at the end of the year when the checks returned, the supplies which had been lent them.

In addition, it was learned on investigation that Morgan had spent $128 of $75 he had drawn by requisition for school expenditure, the money entrusted to Morgan in his capacity as principal was being used to evidence gathered by Gerling. Ultimately, Gerling said, the entire amount was recovered from Morgan only by withholding his salary for May and part of June.

Return of Seven Checks.

Meanwhile, in partial settlement of the account, Morgan has handed seven checks, three for $25 and four for $50 each, all of which the bank refused to honor because Morgan's account was insufficient to cover them, the cashier reported to Gerling.

While in the financial tangle, Morgan sought and obtained loans from the members of his teaching staff, it was learned. A check for $47, signed by one teacher at Sherman School, was sent to the superintendent's office as partial payment of Morgan's indebtedness. The teacher later informed Gerling that she sent the check at the principal's request.

Morgan resides with his wife, formerly a teacher in McKinley High School, at the Saum Hotel Apartments, 1919 South Grand boulevard. He declined to discuss the charges.

He received $5000 a year salary as principal of Sherman School and $1700 as superintendent of Roosevelt evening High School.

Lottery and Betting Levies Producing More, and Ordinary Sources Less Revenue.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Sept. 2.—Taxing the gaming instincts of its burghers proves one of the best means the German State treasury has of improving its revenues. Figures reveal that receipts from lottery, playing card, and betting taxes are steadily increasing while ordinary taxes show a marked decline.

Statistics show an increase of more than 50 per cent in tax revenue in horse racing bets. The tax office cashed in more than 27,000,000 marks (roughly $6,750,000) in 1931 as compared with only 17,000,000 marks in 1924. The size of the bets is growing smaller.

No depression felt in the German playing card industry. About 16 German factories are fully employed to fill the demands of their customers.

Tax on cards brought $650,000 last year, a little more than in the previous year. The increase is mainly due to the growing popularity of bridge in Germany, the factories say.

A tax on lotteries, however, brought the fattest financial yield, which increased nearly 100 per cent since 1927. The State treasury received $15,000,000 from selling lottery tickets in 1931. The same source brought only $3,000,000 in 1927.

"RAK AND FILE" ILLINOIS MINERS SPLIT WITH UNION

Vote Unanimously at Gillespie to Break With Present Officers and Set Up New Organization.

SAY THEY WILL
'LIQUIDATE' LEWIS

Want to Meet Operators for Resumption of Work Under Old $6.10-a-Day Wage Agreement.

By the Associated Press.
GILLESPIE, Ill., Sept. 2.—The "rak and file" convention of Illinois miners voted unanimously today to break with officers of the Illinois Miners' Union and the United Mine Workers of America and to set up a new union under provisional officers.

The action was taken on the recommendation of the Policy Committee headed by Byron Humphries of Springfield, which announced the miners intended "to immediately make plans to meet the Illinois coal operators for the resumption of work throughout the state under satisfactory arrangements."

While no definite action has been taken by the convention on wage scale negotiations, the miners are demanding their old scale of $6.10 a day for diggers in mechanized mines, and a bonus rate of 21 cents for hand-loaders of coal with concessions of the six-hour day and the five-day week.

Text of Statement.
"The miners of Illinois assembled in statewide convention, representing 33,000 miners of the state have definitely repudiated the Lewis-Walker forces," the Policy Committee declared.

"We have decided to give Lewis (International President John L. Lewis) and Walker (Illinois District President John H. Walker) their emergency contract and permit them to operate mines under the 'mine-run' contract. We are through with them and not another cent will be paid them by the miners."

"We will proceed from Illinois to liquidate Lewis in the mining industry of the nation."

Members of the Policy Committee said miners of Indiana also had joined in the movement to set aside the $5 wage scale, with 22 delegates from Indiana attending the meeting here.

Committee Drafts Program.
A committee consisting of two representatives from each sub-district in the State was appointed last night to formulate a program to prevent operation of mines under the new wage contract.

While leaders at the meeting made no definite announcement, they indicated no further attempt would be made to march on operating mines and close them by picketing. They said they hoped to adopt a program which would induce most of the miners now working to leave the mines.

Claude Percy, chairman of the meeting, said many small operators had offered to negotiate with the miners for separate contracts for return of the men to work under the old wage scale. His proposal, he said, would be considered at the meeting. Operators of 20 mines in St. Clair and Madison counties alone have made such offers, it was announced.

Foster Says Deputies Broke Up Meeting at Zeigler, Ill.
William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for President, announced in St. Louis today that when he appeared in Zeigler, Ill., Franklin County mining town, last night, to make a scheduled address, more than 400 spectators who had gathered to hear his speech were chased away by 50 carloads of heavily armed deputy sheriffs.

Foster, when he made the announcement, was accompanied by two members of the Communist Party Campaign Committee, who said they were with him at Zeigler last night. They corroborated his assertion that deputy sheriffs chased away the audience.

"We got into Zeigler about 6:30," Foster said. "At 7 o'clock there were 400 or 500 people gathered around the hall where I was to speak. The hall, ironically enough, was named 'Liberty Hall.' We went to get the keys to open it and while we were gone about 50 carloads of armed deputies, all with revolvers strapped on the outside, chased the crowd away and from then on, wouldn't let them get within half a block of the hall."

Press dispatches from Zeigler today said that several hundred persons appeared at "Liberty Hall" last night to hear Foster speak, but Foster did not show up.

Sheriff Browning Robinson of Franklin County told the Post-Dispatch over long-distance telephone today that he was at Zeigler with a few deputies last night and that he did not see Foster a day time.

WALKER'S SUCCESSOR HOPED TO BE FIREMAN

Instead J. V. McKee Has Been Magistrate, Writer and Teacher — Good Vote-Getter.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Joseph V. McKee, born in the Bronx 43 years ago, wanted to be a fireman, but became Mayor of New York instead.

In between those boyhood years when he loitered, fascinated, around the old firehouse on East Tremont avenue, and today, when, because of the resignation of James J. Walker, he became Mayor, McKee was in turn an instructor in Greek, Latin and literature, a part-time newspaper man, an Assemblyman, a City Court Justice, a lawyer and President of the Board of Aldermen.

They call him "Judge" not so much because he was a City Court Justice, as because of his dignified bearing and appearance.

For the most part, as President of the Board of Aldermen, he has been a supporter of Mayor Walker's policies, though he has not hesitated to take a stand in opposition on several occasions.

He dresses neatly but conservatively. He is good humored, but does not possess the faculty of quick, witty rejoinder so noticeable in Mayor Walker. His nature is retiring and he is a comparative stranger to the Broadway places so familiar to the man he has succeeded as Mayor. He has said that the ceremonial side of the Mayor's office, made much of by Walker, does not appeal to him.

On the numerous occasions when he served as acting Mayor owing to the Mayor's absence from the city, McKee was punctilious in his duties, arriving at the City Hall each morning at 9:15 o'clock and remaining until 6 at night.

In 1918 he married Miss Cornelia E. Kraft of New Rochelle, N. Y. McKee has two sons and two children, Richard and Joseph Jr.

Mayor McKee demonstrated in 1925 a surprising ability as a vote getter, surprising because his quiet, dignified manner of campaigning was markedly different from that of many other candidates. His speeches were informative but were not distinguished by biting wit, as were those of Walker.

McKee's vote-getting strength was demonstrated in 1929 when he had a plurality of 508,000, which was 6000 votes better than Mayor Walker, who led the ticket in four of the five boroughs.

McKee has been described as "the type of young man the new Tammany is drafting," but by most political observers he is not regarded as a Tammany man at all. He has on numerous occasions disagreed with Walker, especially concerned with city expenditures and has earned something of a reputation as a watchdog of the treasury.

Text of Walker Statement on His Resignation

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.

By the Associated Press.
MAYOR WALKER'S statement in connection with his resignation follows in full:

A letter from my counsel, Mr. John J. Curtin, received today, has caused me to make a momentous decision. That is whether or not I shall refuse to go again to Albany to further subject myself to an un-American, unfair, pre-judging conducted by Gov. Roosevelt against me.

Three weeks ago I went to Albany with my counsel confident that we would be accorded a fair hearing, conducted in accordance with the rules established under our principles of government.

My counsel, Mr. Curtin, demanded at the opening of the hearing that the Governor summon those witnesses upon whose testimony Mr. Seabury or the Governor based the so-called charges against me, in order that I might face them and that my counsel might have an opportunity to cross-examine them. This was denied by the Governor. At no time was Mr. Seabury even called upon by the Governor to name those witnesses, much less to summon them. As soon as this ruling was made I protested, but without avail.

Day after day during the course of the proceeding it became more and more apparent that I was being subjected to an extraordinary injustice.

Calls Trial a Tragedy.
I was not accorded even the elementary rights guaranteed to any defendant in a court of law. Instead of an impartial hearing, the proceeding before the Governor developed into a travesty. A mock trial, a proceeding in comparison to which even the practice of a drum-head court-martial seemed liberal.

My counsel's insistence, the conduct of this proceeding was submitted to the Supreme Court in order that the validity of the objections of my counsel might be impartially adjudicated. The Court decided on Monday of this week that the Governor proceeded in excess of jurisdiction and without warrant of law.

(1) By denying me the right to which I am entitled under the Constitution and the law to confront and cross-examine witnesses and to have my counsel cross-examine them and by his refusal to do so, the Governor has proven without supporting evidence.

(2) By considering as charges, upon which he might act adversely, a gross and malicious more than two-thirds of the total number of charges, involving no wrongdoing in fact, and which concerned alleged incidents occurring prior to my second election, over which he has no jurisdiction under the Constitution, the statutes, the decisions of the courts, and the rulings of prior executives, including Governors Charles E. Hughes, David B. Hill and Theodore Roosevelt.

SAMUEL SEABURY DEEMS 'RESIGNATION EQUIVALENT TO CONFESSION OF GUILT'

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 2.

SAMUEL SEABURY, counsel for the Legislative Committee which investigated Mayor Walker's administration, made this statement on Walker's resignation:

"The charges against the Mayor were fully proved and corroborated in many instances by documentary evidence which was undisputed, and by the admissions of the Mayor."

"The Mayor's resignation, in the face of this record is equivalent to a confession of guilt. I must submit to being misled by the Mayor's attempt to substitute for a defense an assault upon the good faith and the motives of the legally constituted authority to review his acts while in office."

"It is highly significant that this excuse is availed of by the Mayor on the eve of the Governor's inquiry into the charges between the Mayor and his fugitive agent, Sherwood."

Seabury has charged that Russell T. Sherwood, accountant, handled nearly a million dollars in transactions for the Mayor before he disappeared. Walker denies the charges.

or illegal act of the executive or the crown.

I am also told that, so far as the courts are concerned, I must submit to being outraged by the unlawful acts of the Governor. I did not believe that in this day and age any man in this country would assert the right to act above the law, to exercise arbitrary and unlawful power, while conceding he did not in law possess arbitrary power.

Governor's Course 'Illegal'

The Governor announced he would not yield jurisdiction to the courts, which might restrain him from doing illegal acts leveled at me, unlawful under long-settled prior decisions, even before the pronouncement of Justice Swayne. The Governor has announced that he will persist in his illegal course. He has announced at a time when I am informed that if the rights which he denies to me were accorded to the alleged charges, I would have to be dismissed. But I am told that I am without remedy at the present time in the courts because the Governor would not yield jurisdiction to the courts which has not been asserted even in England since the time of George III, whose assertions of arbitrary power provoked the American Revolutionary War.

I am told that I am without remedy at the present time in the courts, although the conceded fact of a substantial invasion of my rights is due to a Governor who has a personal interest in the outcome of the pending proceeding of a character which would disgrace a Judge acting in a corresponding capacity on the ground of bias.

This indefensible and lawless purpose of the Governor has revealed itself throughout the hearing. He has not called upon the accusers, particularly Mr. Seabury, to produce any supporting proof. Despite declarations of fairness, he has been studiously unfair. He has acted as a prosecutor, although the law requires that he be coldly neutral to both accuser and accused and that he be an impartial Judge. He has engaged in a gross and malicious examination of my witnesses. He has exhibited discomfiture and displeasure as the unproven charges have been disproved under his eyes by uncontradicted testimony. The burden of proof of my innocence has been cast upon me by the Governor's unlawful procedure.

Denied Access to Record.
He has denied me access to the record of testimony taken in private hearings by Mr. Seabury, which record was paid for by public money and would be further disproof of the charges which he is prosecuting. He denied me until a day or two ago the work sheets used by Mr. Seabury to build up a false structure of bank and stock accounts with which I have no interest or knowledge, responsibility or accountability, but which under the unlawful procedure.

Why, then, continue before him when there is another forum open to me? To that forum, the people of the City of New York, I leave my case in the spirit of true democracy, conscious of the rectitude of my official acts and with a faith in the fair judgment of my fellow citizens.

I am not trying to avoid responsibility. I am incurring it by submitting my case to the people who made me Mayor, the people of the City of New York. To this decision I have been urged by the most loyal and distinguished Democrats in the country.

NEW YORK MAY ELECT NEW MAYOR ON NOV. 8

Clerk Certifies Vacancy Exists; Courts Likely to Iron Out Situation.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Certification that a vacancy exists in the post of Mayor of New York and should be filled at the next general election on Nov. 8 was sent to the Board of Elections today by the City Clerk.

The vacancy occurred with the resignation of Mayor James J. Walker last night. Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen, who automatically succeeded to the mayoralty with Walker's resignation, took over the post today and political circles generally assumed that Walker would be a candidate to fill his own unexpired term.

Though he did not state definitely that he would seek re-election, Walker said he would leave his case in the hands of the voters.

The communication of City Clerk Michael J. Cruise to the Board of Elections, ordering the selection on Nov. 8, was sent while political leaders were predicting the situation would have to be ironed out in the courts, some holding that a new Mayor could not be elected until the next regular municipal election in November, 1933, and others insisting Walker's unexpired term must be filled at the next general election.

"In accordance with section 69 of the election law," Cruise wrote to the Election Board, "I hereby certify to you that there is a vacancy for the office of Mayor of the City of New York, to be voted for at the general election, Nov. 8, 1932."

Cruise sent a copy of the letter to the Corporation Counsel, Arthur J. W. Hilly. He had not conferred with Hilly, who was in conference with Mayor McKee this morning, up to the time that he sent the communication.

John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Kings County, said today it was "not fully decided whether Mayor Walker will run for re-election this coming election."

This statement was considered important as there was wide belief that McKee's decision would carry along the Borough of Richmond and that Secretary of State Edward Flynn, Bronx leader and strong Roosevelt supporter, might not support Walker.

As it is too late for Walker to go before the primaries for nomination, his right to run again for the office he relinquished rests with the Democratic leaders of the five boroughs and he will need the support of three before he can go before the people as a majority candidate.

Under these circumstances the question which I am faced with is: Shall I permit myself to be lynched to satisfy prejudice or political ambition? I feel I further submit that I would thereby be acting as well as the citizens of New York who have twice honored me by electing me Mayor by overwhelming majorities because the verdict whether for or against me, would not be on the merits but dictated by political expediency.

I have gone as far as anyone could to prove my willingness to answer questions on every act in my life. I have met my accusers and disproved their charges. I have met Mr. Seabury and answered his every question. I have met the Governor and answered his every question. Both exhausted themselves in examining me and told me they had no more questions to ask.

I have not been given an opportunity to prove my record of service to the city as its Mayor for two terms, a record of which I am proud, a record which was acclaimed by the whole city, nor will I be granted such an opportunity from the Governor. That is apparent.

Why, then, continue before him when there is another forum open to me? To that forum, the people of the City of New York, I leave my case in the spirit of true democracy, conscious of the rectitude of my official acts and with a faith in the fair judgment of my fellow citizens.

Roosevelt Closes Walker Case; Refuses to Comment

and all since the outer proceedings were begun, spent part of his last day in office at the funeral of his brother, George F. Walker, in St. Patrick's Cathedral. Tears streamed down his cheeks.

After the funeral he disappeared and rumors began to fly that he would resign. At 10 p. m. he returned to the Mayfair House, where he lives, telling reporters he felt "great."

"Get down to City Hall," he said with a laugh, "there's a statement waiting for you."

Half an hour later City Clerk Michael J. Cruise announced the resignation. Walker had submitted it after conferences with political leaders reported to include John P. Curran of Tammany Hall and John H. McCooey, Democratic leader in Brooklyn.

Counsel Says Up Situation.
The Mayor's chief counsel, John J. Curtin, had written him a formal letter in which he said there were two courses open to him: "To continue to submit to the illegal and unfair proceedings before the Governor, in which may eventually an illegal order of removal would be void from its entry, or—"

"To submit your case to the people of the city of New York, who, after all, are the ones most concerned."

Walker chose the latter course, declaring he was "submitting my case to the people who made me Mayor, the people of the city of New York."

"Shall I permit myself to be lynched to satisfy prejudice or political ambition?" he asked. He called the proceedings at Albany "a travesty, a mock trial, a proceeding in comparison to which even the practice of a drum-head court-martial seemed liberal."

Walker's Career.
Walker, who became Mayor in 1925 after a career as song writer, lawyer, Assemblyman and Democratic leader of the State Senate, is the first Mayor of New York to resign under charges.

Since his legislative days, Walker has ridden the crest of a tide of popularity which rose until, in 1925, he swept him into office for his second term by a 500,000-vote majority over Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia, his Republican opponent. Walker proclaimed during that campaign that he would be a "Tammany Hall Mayor."

Proclaiming his championship of the nickel fare, ever ready with wisecracks, Walker rode out many storms such as the one over the murder of Arnold Rothstein, gambler, whose unsolved death brought heavy criticism on the police and his administration. He was as ready to act as a master of ceremonies at a banquet as to laugh down Communists who invaded City Hall to denounce him.

His travels to Europe and elsewhere, his tardiness at many functions aroused criticism, but it all rolled off him without apparent effect.

More than 14 months ago a move to investigate the city government was begun and Chairman W. Kingsland May of the Republican State Committee plotted it through the State Legislature. Walker charged it was a "Republican fishing expedition." The charge was denied.

For many months the Hofstadter committee investigators, guided by Samuel Seabury, prodded and searched in the multitudinous departments of the city. During that time, Walker made a spectacular but unsuccessful trip to California to plead for the release of T. Mooney, afterward he appeared in the witness stand and fought Seabury's attempt to pin him down on financial deals. Crowds cheered him.

Then Seabury filed with the Governor his "conclusions" about Walker, alleging his unfitness to continue in office. They included allegations that Walker accepted $25,000 in securities from a broker interested in taxicab legislation; that he violated the city charter by holding bonds of a concern which received a city contract; that he sponsored the Equitable Bus franchise to the detriment of the city; that he received a $10,000 letter of credit from one of the Equitable's promoters; that he accepted substantial gratuities from Paul Block, publisher, and others; that he failed to help the Hofstadter committee find the missing Sherwood; that he failed to prevent his brother, Dr. William H. Walker, from splitting fees with doctors who received city cases.

McKee called Seabury's "conclusions" a "travesty." McKee issued a formal statement this afternoon in which he referred to himself as "acting Mayor."

He did not amplify this designation, but City Hall officials said this was the correct classification in the most punctilious use of words. Because the city charter says that in case of resignation of the Mayor the President of the Board of Aldermen shall "act" as Mayor and does not say that he shall "be" Mayor.

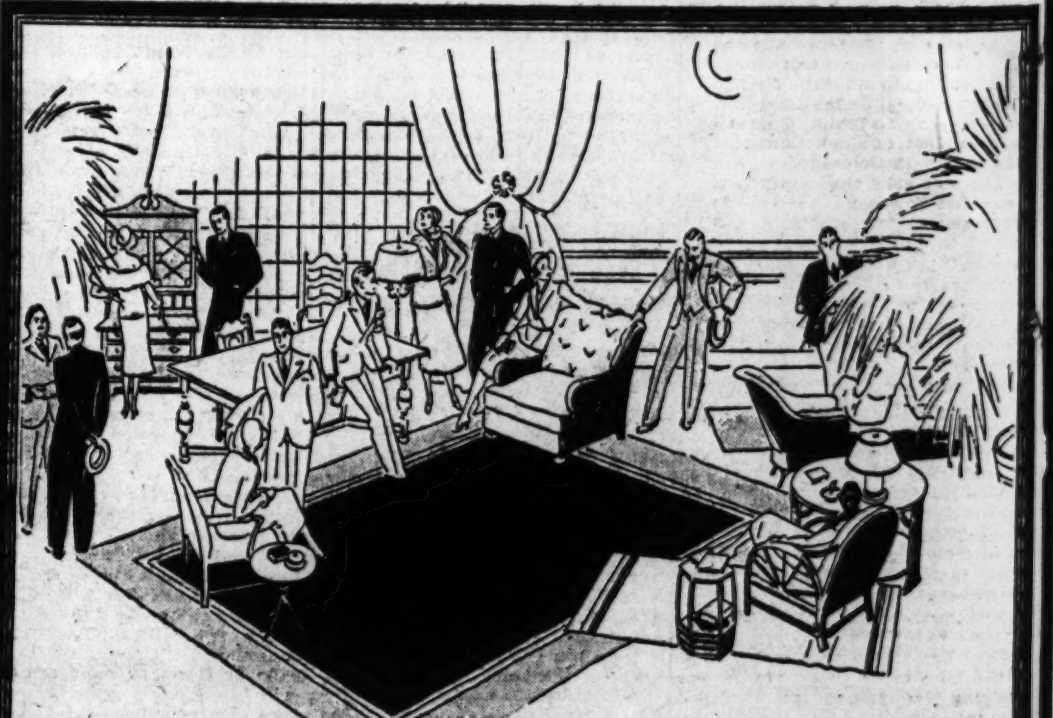

"It is with sorrow and regret," McKee's statement said, "that I take up the duties of acting Mayor of the city of New York."

"In the unhappy circumstances of the case there comes to me a full realization of the grave responsibilities placed upon me."

"Many serious problems face the municipality. I shall approach them with an eye single only to their solution for the greatest good of the people of the city."

"I need and invite the co-operation of all of our citizens to the end that we have an efficient, economical and honest administration of our city's affairs."

McKee, as president of the Board of Aldermen, drew a salary of $25,000 a year. Today his salary jumped to $40,000 a year as Mayor. Dennis J. Mahon, automatic successor to McKee as aldermanic president, jumps into a salary of $25,000 a year against his former $25,000 which he drew as vice-chancellor of the Board of Aldermen.

DOCTOR ON STAND SAYS THOMASSON IS FEEBLE-MINDED

Daniel L. Sexton Who Treated Realty Man in 1929 and 1930 Tells of 'Signs of Senility.'

SAW HIM EATING BACON WITH FINGERS

Witness Describes Unkempt Appearance—Asserts He Rarely Answered Greetings.

Dr. Daniel L. Sexton, physician who treated Hugh W. Thomasson, wealthy property owner, in 1929 and 1930, testified today in Circuit Judge Hoffmeister's court he believed Thomasson to be "feeble-minded."

Admitting he had not examined Thomasson as an alienist, might Dr. Sexton described the real estate owner's condition as "being unable to do constructive thinking and showing signs of senility." Dr. Sexton, whose offices are in the University Club Building, said he had observed Thomasson when both he and Thomasson were living at the Fairmont Hotel, Maryland and Euclid avenues.

He said the real estate owner was of unkempt appearance, gave a great deal of time alone, and rarely answered greetings made to him. Once, he said, he had seen Thomasson in a restaurant eating bacon in a restaurant asked by Randolph Laughlin, of Thomasson's counsel, if he thought that was unusual, the physician said he believed it was not usually done in public.

"I am no alienist," Dr. Sexton said. "I am a physician. I have treated many cases of mental disorders, but I am not an alienist. I have treated many cases of mental disorders, but I am not an alienist. I have treated many cases of mental disorders, but I am not an alienist."

Testing Dr. Sexton's knowledge of mental disorders, Laughlin asked what sort of an illness McBeth, in Shakespeare's play of that name, had. "Opposing senility," he answered. "I have treated many cases of mental disorders, but I am not an alienist. I have treated many cases of mental disorders, but I am not an alienist."

The question of Thomasson's legal residence is the primary one before the jury. Cullen and Taylor R. Young, Rogers and two other cousins, Miss Elmira Townsend, have been presenting a series of petitions in lawsuits involving Thomasson to show he is a resident of St. Louis

$2,000,000 SUIT DISMISSED
Employee Charged Ford Motor Co. Owed Amount in Royalties.
By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Sept. 2.—Holding there was no cause for action, Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson today dismissed a suit for $2,000,000 in royalties brought against the Ford Motor Co. by Antonio Felix Pajalich, a former Ford employee. The judge said Pajalich in his argument had not proved that a contract existed between himself and the Ford company.

In 1917, according to Pajalich's contention, he entered the employ of the company as a sheet metal worker and contended he was commissioned by Henry Ford personally to make improvements on tractors. He declared he invented improvements on various parts of the tractor and asked for royalties on tractors manufactured since 1917.

Miss Glynn, who is 22 years old, lives at 5218 Palm street and was educated at Rosati-Kain Seminary. Formerly she assisted her mother, the late Catherine H. Glynn, once Democratic committeewoman in the Eighteenth Ward. William Glynn formerly was secretary of the Democratic City Committee.

NORMAN THOMAS FINDS NO HOPE IN EITHER OLD PARTY

any vigorous action unless and until he found it necessary, in a political sense, to do so," the speaker said. He said the resignation of Walker, against whom Thomas ran for Mayor in 1929, was "a piece of luck" for the Governor.

"Gov. Roosevelt has been in great luck lately," Thomas said, "and he is likely to be lucky, up to the time he's elected—if he is elected. Then God help him—going into the presidency with a ramshackle party behind him, and his own record and habits of evasion and shilly-shallying."

The Socialist candidate, on a speaking tour of the country, arrived on a morning train from Springfield, Mo., and was met by a group of party workers, with whom he had breakfast in Union Station. He wore a travel-crushed blue serge suit, brown fedora hat and dark red necktie. Thomas, a former Presbyterian minister, 48 years old, tall, spare and rather prematurely white-haired, with a frank geniality which seems in no way a campaign pose.

He was driven in an automobile parade to and over Twelfth boulevard, before going to the Melbourne Hotel, his headquarters for the day. From the luncheon, which was attended by about 250 persons, he went to Granite City for a mid-afternoon meeting. He will make a radio talk from Station KMOX studio at 7:45 p. m. His principal meeting will be held at the Odeon tonight, where he will begin speaking at 8:30 o'clock.

When reporters brought up the question who would be elected President, Thomas said he was trying to be impartial as between the two old party candidates, but his remarks showed the opinion that Roosevelt had the better chance.

Without making any rash claims, Thomas was ready to tell of some of the things he would do, if the unexpected should happen and he should be the choice of the electoral college.

"A Socialist President would have a dog's life, even if he had a favorable Congress," Thomas said, "unless there were a well organized Socialist movement throughout the country. That is why we are emphasizing organization, educational work. From the time when we get a strong nationwide organization to functioning, actual socialization ought to be a work of not more than a generation."

"One thing I would do, as President, would be to take the people thoroughly into my confidence. I would go on the air at least once a week, to explain to the people what was going on. In that way, I would hope to get a body of public opinion behind me that would back me in any contests with Congress, or opposition from other quarters."

"Our problem, in building up the Socialist movement, is increased by the sheer size of the United States. In a compact country like England, we could build up in localities. Here that is not the correct strategy, as indicated by the record of the various progressive blocs, which never result in a new party. Even Bohan always seems to turn up as a Republican at election time."

Thomas said he stood with his party in its position on prohibition. The party, by referendum vote, endorsed a plank for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, with provisions for future sale of liquor through Government agencies, without profit to individuals.

"Our position is more definite and rational than that of the Republican platform," he said, "and as to the Democratic platform, I am wholly opposed to its proposal of naked repeal. That would be throwing the fat into the fire. The liquor traffic in private hands is an endless source of trouble, whether it is legal or illegal."

"It may be heresy to say this in St. Louis," Thomas continued, "but I have no enthusiasm for taxing the poor man's beer, when the taxes should fall instead upon incomes and inheritances. I think the worker is having one put over on him this beer agitation. If beer will be a good thing for the worker, and personally I think that it may be—let him have it, but don't put the taxes on it that ought to be laid elsewhere."

"Some say it is better for Uncle Sam to tax beer than for Al Capone to tax it. But that is not the alternative. The Socialist party plan for non-profit sale of liquor is better than either."

William P. Mason of Kirkwood will preside at the Odeon meeting, Mason, Barnett Cohen and W. C. Meyer, with a group of women workers met the candidate at the station. Thomas will depart tonight for Chicago to meet the National Committee of the party tomorrow.

Thomas formally resigned from the ministry about a year ago. His pastoral work was in New York, and was stopped by the war, the young pastor withdrawing from his charge because of his unwillingness to sanction war activities of any sort.

Permit for Open Air Speech by Norman Thomas Refused.
Plans were made by W. C. Meyer, Socialist State organizer, for an open air address by Norman Thomas at Twelfth boulevard and Olive street, as an incident of the Thomas automobile parade today, were abandoned because official sanction for the meeting was withheld. The police of Central District recommended to Director of Streets Brooks that the requested permit be not granted, because traffic congestion might result. Brooks took the same view. The meeting would have been held at the northwest corner about 9 a. m. and the automobiles in the parade would have stopped along the street for at least a part of the time.

GOVERNORS ASKED TO HELP STRIKE OF MIDWEST FARMERS

Offer Made to Withdraw Pickets if Executives Call for Suspension of Sales of Produce.

When Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 2.—Leaders of the suspended farm strike today sought gubernatorial aid to further their fight for higher produce prices.

Proclamations from the Governors of Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota, calling upon farmers to withhold their produce from the market, were suggested by the executives of the affected States by Woodbury County members of the Farmers' Holiday Association, who offered to withdraw their pickets from the highways if such action is taken.

The suggestion was made to Milo Reno, head of the Holiday Association, in a telegram, copies of which were sent to the Governors. Reno approved of the idea and said that the gubernatorial proclamations and withdrawal of pickets would do a lot to prepare for the conference of Governors of Midwest States Sept. 9.

The Governors' conference which is scheduled to be held in Sioux City, Ia., will seek means to settle differences between farmers and produce buyers, bringing the holiday conclusion. To Turner of Iowa, son of Minnesota North Dakota, they will attend at the meeting. Expert Finds Shaw's Garden Different From Any Other Leonard Barron, Noted Horticulturist, Says It Meets People's Needs—Enthusiastic Over New Grass Developed There.

"I'll tell you one way Shaw's Garden is different from any other in the world," said Leonard Barron of New York, pausing beside the lily pools, where brilliant constellations of starry white, blue, pink and the unique yellow blossoms mocked yesterday's lowering sky; "that is in its application to the needs of the community."

Barron, internationally famous horticulturist, author of several books and judge of flower shows on both sides of the Atlantic, had come out from New York to speak on "You and Your Garden" at the Horticultural Society meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at Washington University Medical School auditorium, Scott and Euclid avenues.

He had spent the morning in the 1600-acre extension at Gray Summit, and the afternoon in the city garden. He was impressed by the potentials of the out-of-town garden, surprised by hibiscus and Victoria regia lilies growing outdoors in town, and enthusiastic over the prospects of a new lawn grass which, he declared, "might sweep the country."

But as he and Superintendent George H. Pring completed their rounds and strolled back toward the entrance, the talk returned to fundamentals, to the garden's performance of its public function as the gift of Henry Shaw to the people of Missouri.

The Garden and the Public.

"It is exactly what a botanical garden should be," said Barron. "Botanical gardens in general are either museums or laboratories. As a matter of fact, most of them are collections of decrepit things which should have been killed in their youth."

"But here," while the garden has maintained its leadership in science, the unscientific amateur can find not only much to interest him, but a wealth of information to take home and put to practical use. So far as the general public is concerned, your scientific work, known to scientists all over the world, performs its service in the background, as it should. Its business is not to entertain the amateur, but to find out the fundamental causes behind the behavior or misbehavior of the plants that interest him."

Barron described the immense stock of show orchids at Gray Summit—60,000 or more of them—"probably the finest collection of the sort anywhere, certainly the finest in any botanical garden." In diversity of soil, exposure and situation, he declared he had never seen a finer site for a garden than those 1600 acres in the Meramec Valley.

"We saw thriving there plants which, in commonly accepted opinion, cannot be grown in this part of the world," remarked Barron. "I refer particularly to Scotch heather, Rhododendrons and azaleas were growing in masses outdoors. That opens up an entirely new field, for apparently the hardiness of these plants, and probably others, has been judged by the worst possible situation instead of the best."

"Of course," Barron said, "I should return to Gray Summit 100 years from now. That's the time to see this garden."

MOSES SAYS HOOVER WILL WIN 'AFTER A HARD FIGHT'

Estimates Electoral College Majority at 23; Won't Predict Congress' Make-Up.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A prediction that President Hoover will be re-elected "after a hard fight," and by a majority of at least 22 electoral college votes, was made last night by Senator George H. Moses, New Hampshire Republican.

"My honest opinion," he began, "is that we will re-elect the President after a hard fight. I won't say anything about the complexion of the next Congress until I've traveled around the country some more."

He expects a smaller total vote this year than in 1928.

"We've figured that the Hoover-Curtis ticket will get an irreducible minimum of 23 electoral votes, 22 more than a majority."

In 1928 Hoover received 444 votes, to 87 for Smith.

The veteran Senator said: "In New England the Republican sentiment is enormously stronger than it was in 1928. Massachusetts, a prominent Democrat told me, will go for Hoover and Gov. Ely will be defeated. In my own State of New Hampshire, we will swing right through, but with a smaller majority than in 1928 because the total vote will be smaller."

BROWN RECALLS CLERK
FIRED FOR BONUS PLEA

Postmaster General Says "Person Has Right to Speak Own Mind" in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Asserting that "this is a free country and a man has a perfect right to speak his own mind," Postmaster-General Brown said today he had informed President Hoover that a Gary, Ind., postal clerk, dismissed after advocating further payment of the soldiers' bonus, would be reinstated.

While Brown conferred with the President on the question today, John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion, submitted a protest to one of the Chief Executive's secretaries against the dismissal of the Gary postal clerk, Ben H. Kerr, who had advocated additional bonus payments at a legion meeting.

Chairman Campbell of the Civil Service Commission, replying to a letter from President Hoover, said the commission had not promulgated any new order prohibiting Government employees from expressing their views publicly on the question of soldiers' bonus payments.

White House officials made public simultaneously four letters, two of them signed by the President, in which Mr. Hoover said he personally had never made any suggestion that discussion of the additional payment on adjusted compensation certificates be prohibited among Government workers.

"The fact that they differ with my views," the President said, "does not necessarily constitute 'political activity' under the law which forbids such action."

A specific case was made by the President of the dismissal of the Gary, Ind., postoffice clerk.

The President, approving the action of Brown in reinstating Kerr, said he thought the clerk should retain his position in order that there "may be no misunderstanding or misrepresentation in this matter."

Brown, on leaving the White House today, said Kerr would have been dismissed had the question of bonus discussions not even entered the situation, but that due to the "exaggerated importance" attached to this part of his dismissal, he would be given another chance.

"This is a free country," he said, "and a man has a perfect right to live his life as he sees fit and to speak his own mind. Of course, there is a question of good taste involved. I intend to interpret the postoffice regulations in this light."

U. S. REVENUE INCREASES

By the Associated Press.

During August a total of $54,557,748 in miscellaneous revenue was collected compared with $43,861,681 for the same month last year. Income tax collections were $15,416,230, compared with $13,370,174. Total collections were $99,026,077, bringing collections for the present fiscal year to $195,011,943, compared with $220,399,151 for the same period last year.

BUILDING & LOAN MEN ARE ADVISED NOT TO FORECLOSE

Fort Urges Suspension Until Home Loan Bank Plan Goes in Operation About Oct. 15.

SPEAKS AT MEETING IN FRENCH LICK, IND.

Says System Should Last as Long as Nation—Seeks Subscriptions to $134,000,000 Fund.

By the Associated Press.

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Sept. 2.—Suspension of mortgage foreclosures until the home loan bank building and loan association officers today by Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the new system's directing board.

The convention also received a message from President Hoover in which he said that the home loan bank system is "a tribute to the future underlying theory and efficiency of management of the building and loan associations of the United States."

Fort said the question of whether the board will name registrars in each bank district for the taking of subscriptions to its stock will likely be decided when the board meets Tuesday in Washington. The board chairman said no action will be taken regarding appointment of directors for local banks and on the leasing of bank quarters before the stock subscriptions are started.

Addressing the fortieth annual convention of the United States Building and Loan League, Fort said the 12 home loan banks would begin to function about Oct. 15 and that "thereafter, the money will be available on sound loans which we are getting ready to grant."

"We hope that every building and loan association will suspend the foreclosure of mortgages, at least where there is the slightest possibility of hope for the mortgage," Fort said.

He pointed out that Comptroller Pole of the Currency had directed a suspension of foreclosures of mortgages by closed National banks and that the Federal Reserve authorities had pledged co-operation on a 60-day moratorium movement instituted by the board.

"Dream of President," Fort told the league convention that the home loan bank "is the fulfillment of a long-time dream of the President," and that "well founded and well run, it should last as long as our nation is a democracy."

Fort also recommended to convention members the formation in every state of building and loan committees analogous to the business and industrial committees that have been created in each Federal reserve district. He said these would have as their purpose "putting the lending facilities of your institutions at the service of distressed mortgagors immediately," and added:

"I can assure you that when those committees are formed you will find the utmost spirit of co-operation from the business and industry committees in your Federal reserve district."

Fort said assertions the home loan system was "an entrance of the Government into business and into socialism" would "not stand analysis."

He Urges Subscriptions. "Socialism," he continued, "means the ownership of such institutions by the Government and their operation by the voters. The home loan bank system, properly constituted, developed as it should be developed, means the ownership of the community by its own savings institution. The operation and control of these banks will rest in the future with millions of shareholders not by right of suffrage, but by right of thrift."

Fort said that with the establishment of the districts and location of cities for the banks, the next step was the opening of subscription books for $134,000,000 in capital stock. He told the delegates "I want here and now to plead with you for instant and aggressive support of our stock subscription campaign in the next 30 days. Nothing will do so much to start the banks off right as substantial initial subscriptions to stock."

Urges Advancing Taxes. "Your associations hold thousands upon thousands of mortgages on properties which are deteriorating physically for want of repair. You can far better afford to add an additional loan of $1000 on many a mortgage than to take over the property in its present condition and then make the repairs."

"Municipalities are starved for the want of taxes. The borrowers from your institutions are permitting tax liens to accumulate with penalties and heavy interest. Both in their interest and your own these taxes should be generally advanced. If you advance them the municipality can stop borrowing money. Nothing will do more to strengthen the value of the property under your mortgage than to strengthen the finances of the municipality where it is located."

INQUEST WEDNESDAY IN DICE GAME KILLING

Omaha Police to Investigate Activities of Allen Fitzmaurice in That City.

Inquest into the death of Allen Fitzmaurice, who succumbed yesterday to wounds suffered Sunday in a dice game brawl in his room at Hotel Statler, will be held Wednesday after police at Omaha, Neb., have had an opportunity to investigate his activities there, where he was wanted for issuing fraudulent checks.

Meanwhile, the police last night rearrested Clyde Jackson West End bootlegger, who declared he wrested Fitzmaurice's revolver from him and shot him after Fitzmaurice had tried to hold up Jackson and his companion, Miss Margaret McKibbin, at the close of the early morning dice game.

Jackson, who had been at liberty under $2500 bond, was required to post surety of $10,000 and was released. Miss McKibbin, accidentally shot by Jackson in the brawl, is in a hospital recovering from a bullet wound in the right thigh.

Inspector Ben Denbaum of the Omaha police force, who arrived here yesterday about the time Fitzmaurice died, took charge later in the day of several baggage checks in Fitzmaurice's effects. On his return to Omaha he intends to claim the baggage and search it in an effort to discover the precise nature of Fitzmaurice's activities.

Meanwhile, Fitzmaurice's wife, under the name Mrs. Peter C. Laird, is in jail in Omaha, charged with issuing worthless checks. In a letter found in his room, Fitzmaurice declared she was innocent of the charge and accused himself of drawing her into the fake check plan without any criminal intent on her part.

Police Lieut. Claude Adams told reporters today that Fitzmaurice made an oral statement about the shooting before he died, but flatly refused to sign it when it was reduced to writing, until he could see a "certain friend." The identity of the "certain friend" was never revealed.

In his oral statement he declared Jackson lost $209 to him in a dice game, then picked up the money and started to leave. Fitzmaurice said he then drew his revolver, which Jackson seized and began shooting. Jackson and Miss McKibbin both declared that Fitzmaurice held them at bay while another man, still sought, bound and gagged Miss McKibbin. Jackson, they declared, showed fight when the man started to tie him up, and finally got possession of the revolver.

POLL ON DEBT CANCELLATION

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 2. — Amalgamation of the American Defense Society and the National Action Committee was announced last night at a dinner here of the Newport conference, of which Richard Washburn Child is chairman.

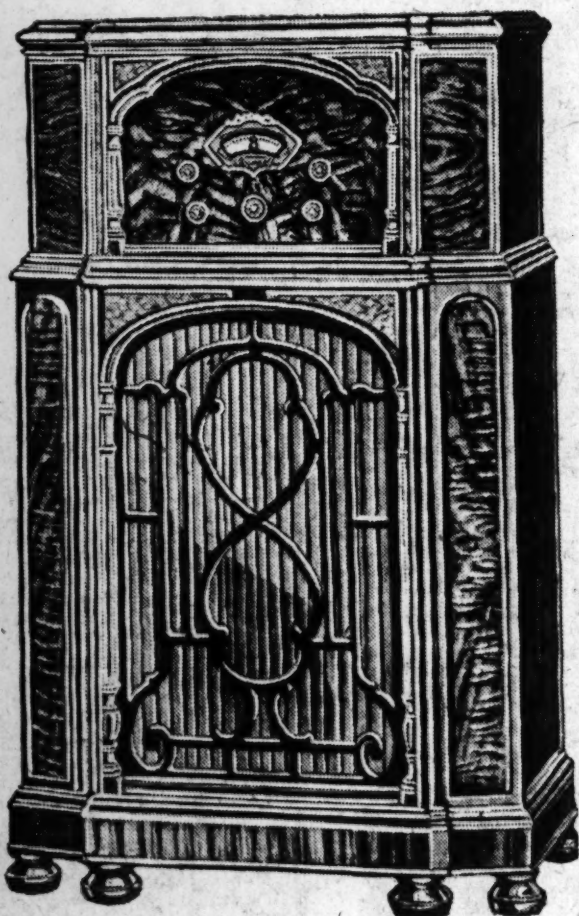

The announcement was made by Child, as chairman of the National Action Committee, and Elton H. Hooker, president of the Defense Society. The combined organizations plan to sound out public opinion, by means of postcard ballots, on the questions of debt cancellation and of calling an international economic conference.

TWO PILOTS HURT WHEN AIRPLANES COLLIDE IN RACE

Ships Fall Together When Their Wings Lock in 21-Mile Event of Cleveland Competition.

DOOLITTLE TOUCHES
301 MILES AN HOUR

Fails to Set New Speed Record for Land Craft
Because Tail Wind Pushed Him Along.

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 2.—Locking their airplane wings as they rounded the home pylon, 150 yards in front of the grandstand, William A. Warrick Jr. and Paul S. Bloom were injured in the first serious accident of the National Air Races today.

Bloom and Warrick were leading in the second lap of the first event of the afternoon, a 2-mile race for amateurs, when they crashed.

Bloom, whose home is in Davenport, Ia., was a few yards ahead when Warrick attempted to take up the distance by making a sharp turn. As he started to straighten out, Warrick's right wing locked with the left wing of Bloom's borrowed monoplane and the two ships crashed together in a cloud of dust. Both planes were demolished.

At Berea Hospital, where the men were taken, Dr. Willard Bowser said Bloom had a mild concussion of the brain and Warrick a moderate concussion and lacerations.

Bloom was flying a monoplane borrowed from Harold Newmann, Moline, Ill., and Warrick that of Art Chester, Joliet, Ill.

The event was won by Sydney Nesbitt, Montreal, Quebec, with an average speed of 101.694 miles an hour. B. F. Stegall, Savannah, Ga., was second; S. B. Clevely, Toronto, Ont., was third.

The slim all-metal monoplane of Ray Moore, Alameda, Cal., was qualified for the 100-mile speed classic with an average speed over the three-kilometer course of 237.733 miles an hour. Moore's fastest dash was 254.389 miles an hour and his slowest 222.065. The race will be run Monday.

New Speed Record Likely.

America's fastest flying pilots were more confident than ever today that the world's land plane speed record would be broken before the races end Monday.

A large part of their encouragement came from a spectacular performance yesterday by Maj. James H. Doolittle, St. Louis. Flying a stubby monoplane, he made one dash over a three-kilometer course at a rate of 301.106 miles an hour. Although the world's record, made by the late Adit Bonnet of France, is only 275.47 miles an hour, Doolittle was not credited with breaking it because his 301-mile speed was partly due to a tail wind. On four laps, two with the wind and two against it, Doolittle averaged 282.672 miles an hour. His slowest time was 261.534.

The previous day, Doolittle used another propeller and made an unofficial time of 293 miles an hour, and that will be the propeller he will use for his next assault on the record.

With the propeller changed back and his motor tuned again, he expects to exceed the present record by at least five miles an hour. He hopes to make the new attempt tomorrow.

Two other flyers planned to seek the record today. James J. Hailip, St. Louis, new holder of the transcontinental record, and James R. Wedell had their fast planes ready to go, both expecting to go 275 miles an hour and possibly more. Roscoe Turner, who averaged 261.414 in an attempt at the record yesterday, also probably will try again before the races close.

Scandalous Stunt.

Lieut. Andrew Zotti, whose stunts begin, end, or are wholly made up of maneuvers with his plane upside down, is the stunning sensation of the races.

In his native country the 25-year-old Lieutenant, who has been flying for only four years, is commander of the Escadrille Folie, a squadron that specializes in inverted aerial acrobatics.

"This is only what we do in the line of duty," he said through an interpreter. "These are not what you call stunts for the sake of showmanship—but for the sake of training."

"We practice so all the time. I can fly for 40 minutes upside down without once bringing my plane to its normal position."

Taking off in normal fashion, he soon turns the wheels toward the sky and, hanging head downward, waves to the air race spectators as he begins a series of wide circles around the field.

His skill makes the maneuver look simple but, in his own words, "the most difficult thing I do is to go around the field upside down."

Next hardest, he said, is the inverted spin, one of the most dangerous maneuvers in aviation, stunting.

The favorite with the crowd, however, is a vertical "8." Flying upside down, he begins at the bot-

SEASONAL PICKUP TO GIVE JOBS TO 5000 HOSIERY WORKERS

Forecast Made by Union Head After Renewal of Work Agreement With Manufacturers.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—Emil Rieve, president of the American Federation of Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers, forecast re-employment of more than 5000 hosiery workers throughout the country, due to seasonal pickup, as the renewed agreement between workers and manufacturers in the industry went into effect yesterday.

He said a year free from labor troubles and internal disputes, with job security for employees, was virtually assured by the agreement.

BELLAIRE, O., Sept. 2.—The Rail & River Coal Co. announces it will recall about 1100 men within two weeks when it resumes operations in its mine here.

The company supplies several Canadian railways. Another mine, employing about 500 men, will be reopened later, officials reported.

LEROY, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Two hundred men and women employees have been called back to work at the division plant of the General Foods Corporation here. For several months up to this week, the plant has been open with a minimum number of employees. A night and a day shift have been arranged in order to speed up production.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 2.—Because of new orders, the Newburgh works of the American Steel & Wire Co. closed since July 1, will resume operations Tuesday, employing 400.

LOST 9 DAYS IN JUNGLE AFTER PARACHUTE LEAP

Three U. S. Flyers in Nicaragua Found by Plane Which Guides Patrol to Them.

By the Associated Press.
MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Sept. 2.—Three United States flyers today told how they jumped from their plane in the darkness of a jungle storm and reached safety because of a tenacious search by fellow Marines, two of whom lost their lives in the quest.

They were Lieut. Clavis C. Coffman of San Antonio, Tex., Serg. W. E. Scofield, and Corp. R. R. Townsend, whose plane crashed 60 miles from Bluefields in the Sequia district Aug. 21. With them in another plane at the time was Lieut. Arthur F. Binney of Grand Rapids, Mich., the flyer who reported their plight.

The three rescued men have just arrived here, and expressed sorrow to learn that Lieut. R. P. Rutledge, Festus, Mo., and Serg. O. B. Simmons, Hamilton, O., had lost their lives in a crash while seeking to aid them in the jungle.

Planes Separated by Storm.

Lieut. Coffman said his and Lieut. Binney's plane were flying patrol and became separated in thickening weather. Suddenly visibility vanished entirely, and Coffman was forced to fly blind. The winds of a storm forced him into a spin, he "over-pulled" trying to come out, and went into another.

"I figured the 'soup' was too thick to pull out again before a crash," Coffman said. "So I signaled to Scofield and Townsend to 'hail out.' I followed and Scofield came down near me. My chute caught on a limb, and I hung about 30 feet above the ground. Before Scofield could get to me the limb broke and I was temporarily knocked out.

Sighted by Plane.

"When I revived we covered about five miles through the jungle hunting Townsend, but darkness interrupted. Scofield piled up leaves over the two of us to keep out the rain. We slept through that horrible night as best we could, only to find Townsend sleeping within 100 yards of us at daylight.

"We started to make a raft and try to float down the nearest river, but soon we heard the roar of a motor. The plane we soon saw was flying around the spot where we left our 'chutes,' and we made signal flags of our underwear and attracted its attention.

"From then on life was fairly easy, with ships dropping supplies, and guiding a land patrol to us. It was nine days before the patrol got through, but those Marines made it and brought us back to safety."

U. S. Citizen Killed in Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—William P. Blocker, United States Consul at Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, informed the State Department yesterday he had requested authorities there to make a full investigation of the death of F. V. Humphrey, a United States citizen.

Blocker said Humphrey was found dead in the Pacheco River, near Colonia Garcia, Chihuahua, on Aug. 25, under conditions indicating he had been murdered by robbers.

CHICAGO JOB PRINTERS QUIT

355 Strike Against Wage Cuts in Several Small Shops.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Union printers in many job shops quit work yesterday on orders to reject 15 to 20 per cent wage cuts. Union officers said the cuts constituted a "lockout."

Most of the shops affected were small, said Lawrence Corias, organizer of Typographical Union, Local No. 16, and only 35 men were affected by the lockout order, other shops having delayed putting into effect the reductions voted by the Franklin Association, composed of employers.

HAD TWO GUNS, FINED ON AUTO TAG CHARGE

'Blackie' Arms, Shelton Gangster, Penalized $12 in Belleville Court.

"Blackie" Arms, notorious Shelton gangster and former Williamson County gunman, who was arrested Aug. 11 in an automobile in which there were a machine gun and a sawed-off shotgun, was fined $12 at Belleville today as a result of the arrest. The charge on which he was convicted was driving an automobile with an improper license plate.

Arms, whose given name is Monroe, was stopped by police officers while two other men were with him in his automobile. His companions fled, but Deputy Sheriffs said they recognized them and later arrested as the companions Ray Daugherty, associate of the Shelton gang, and William Smith, familiarly known as "Bad Eye."

Sheriff Mune of St. Clair County swore out warrants charging all three with vagrancy, charging Arms and Daugherty with carrying firearms in a motor vehicle, and Arms alone with operating a car with an improper license tag.
They were tried before Justice of the Peace L. E. Wangelin at Belleville on all three charges today. Justice Wangelin dismissed the vagrancy charge, saying there was insufficient evidence. He dismissed the weapon-carrying charge with the assertion that the Illinois Supreme Court had ruled that officers, to make such a charge legally, must be equipped with a search warrant.

In the case before him, the Justice continued, the officers had had no warrant. They had merely arrested the defendants on suspicion and, finding the weapons in the car, had sworn out the warrant.
Hence the charge of carrying weapons would be dismissed.

On the license tag charge, Arms explained that he had owned an old Ford automobile, that he and a man with whom he was associated in the cleaning and dyeing business had purchased the Chevrolet in which he was arrested, and he, "without thinking," had changed the license plates to the new vehicle.

CHARLES M. HAY SPENT $9572 IN CAMPAIGN

Received Contributions of More Than $3000 From Supporters in Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 2.—

successful candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate in the recent primary election, reported to the Secretary of State today that his campaign cost $9572.50.

Hay's campaign was largely financed by his friends. William T.
Kemper of Kansas City, Democratic National Committeeman, contributed $1250; the late Frank Niles of Kansas City $1000 and the Hay-for-Senator Club of Kansas City $1000. Frank and Paul Wielandy of St. Louis contributed $1000. Frank Wielandy, former Game and Fish Commissioner, once sought the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Many smaller contributions were reported by Hay, who ran third behind Col. Bennett C. Clark of St. Louis and Charles
M. Howell of Kansas City.

B. F. Beazell of Kansas City, unsuccessful Republican candidate for the Republican Senatorial nomination, reported he spent $315.99.
Politte Elvins, Clayton, unsuccessful Republican Congressional candidate, reported expenditures of $287.80, while Jesse Lee Brightwell, Monticello, unsuccessful Democratic Congressional candidate, reported he spent $110.90. Two Democratic Circuit Judges of Kansas City, Thomas J. Seehorn and E. E.
Forsterfield, who were unopposed for renomination, reported no expenditures except the required filing fee of $25.

FORMER ILLINOIS CANDIDATE CHARGED WITH HOLDUP MURDER

Returned to Elgin From New York, Where He Planned to Sail for Europe.

By the Associated Press.
ELGIN, Ill., Sept. 2.—Edward M.
Ryan, unsuccessful candidate for State Treasurer in the Democratic primary last spring and until a week ago a Deputy Bailiff in Municipal Court at Chicago, was returned here yesterday from New York and charged with being an accessory to the murder of Herman Holtz, employee of an ice cream company who was shot on July 31.

Ryan and Harold McClelland, Elgin, also charged with being an accessory to the slaying, were arrested Tuesday night in New York as they were about to leave for Europe, State's Attorney George D.
Carberry of Kane County said.

Ryan and McClelland were implicated in the confessions of Donald Skene and Henry Atkinson, captured in Seattle, Wash., Aug. 13, and held here as the actual slayers of Holtz. Ryan, the confessions said, drove Atkinson to Madison, Wis., in his flight after the murder;
furnished the revolver with which Holtz was shot and received a share of the loot. McClelland was named as having learned the layout of the ice cream plant before the holdup.

ST. PAUL.—Primo Carnera, Italy, out-pointed Art Lasky, Minneapolis, 10 rounds, newspaper decision.

away in his methodical fashion, mixing head shots with body blows, to continue as the aggressor of the two. He closed the round fairly strong with a hard right to the jaw.

They split the third round and Birkie moved into the front in the fourth by flashing Castanaga with a head and body attack. By the same process Birkie captured the fifth and sixth rounds and from then to the tenth fought defensively.

Several times during that stretch Castanaga tried haphazardly but missed. He fired many telling blows at Hans' body and targeted the Californian's jaw repeatedly with his left hand.

The tenth round was an old-fashioned punching bee, with the fighters standing toe to toe exchanging punches.

KAYE DON AND WOOD LIKELY TO BREAK ALL
SPEED RECORDS

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 2.—The two fastest hydroplanes afloat were receiving their final grooming today for the renewal of the Harmsworth trophy race shortly after sunrise tomorrow.

Kaye Don, British challenger for the symbol of speedboat supremacy, was in seclusion while last minute adjustments were made to Miss England III, holder of the world record of 119.8 miles an hour and the craft with which Don hopes to take the trophy "back home."

Gar Wood, who has weathered six previous challenges since he brought the plaque to America in 1920, hoped to make his first run over the new Lake St. Clair course with Miss America X during the day. He has made two dashes over the old Detroit River course, but a combination of circumstances has kept him from trying out the course on which he must defend his laurels.

Record Likely to Fall.

No one doubts that, barring misfortune, the Harmsworth record of 89.913 miles per hour established in the first heat last year by Don in Miss England II, will be shattered by the speedier boats, racing over a faster course.

Don estimates the maximum speed of his 4400 horsepower craft can produce with the fuel available at around 117 miles an hour and in his final pre-race statement he pronounced Miss England III "the best racing boat of its class we have ever built."

Wood has refused to predict the miles per hour his 6400 horsepower monster will develop, but the consensus of race followers, based on engineering formula, is that Miss America X has a potential speed of between 120 and 125 miles per hour. She is Wood's only entry this year.

Early Start Chosen.

The starting hour, 6:30 a. m., was chosen to make smooth water most probable. Should the lake be considered too rough at that time, the rules call for a half-hour delay. Should the course still be too treacherous, the Harmsworth commission must decide whether to suspend the heat until Sunday or until Monday morning.

The present schedule calls for the running of the second heat Monday and the third, if necessary, on Tuesday. The plaque goes to the winner of two heats.

ADMITTS HE KILLED BROTHER AND GIRL FOUND IN QUARRY

Memorial Day Murders of 1931 at Lima, O., Said to Have Been Solved by Confession.

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, O., Sept. 2.—One of the most baffling crimes in Ohio history, the "quarry murders" of Earl Truesdale, 29 years old, and his sweetheart, Thelma Woods, 19, was solved today, police said, by the alleged confession of Loren Ellsworth Truesdale, Earl's 22-year-old brother.

The elder brother was arrested by private detectives last night and gave the alleged confession, the officers said, in the presence of his mother and father. Jealousy caused by rivalry in love was described as the motive.

The younger Truesdale and Miss Woods were killed the evening of Memorial day, 1931. Their bodies, weighted with stones, were found several days later in an abandoned water-filled stone quarry at the outskirts of this city.

In the following 15 months, the slaying remained a mystery further confused by several spurious confessions made by inmates of state penal institutions, who afterward repudiated them. Officers several times arrested suspects, but never included the elder brother until last night.

Loren's confession, the officers said, told of meeting Earl and Miss Woods in the downtown Lima the night of the crime. They bought some liquor, the confession said, and then drove to the quarry.

There the brothers argued about the girl and Loren got a hammer and struck Earl on the head. "He had taken several girls away from me," Loren was quoted as explaining.

Leaving the younger brother dying, Loren returned to the girl, and when he told her what he had done she threatened to report him. The confession said he then struck her with the hammer and attempted to conceal the killings by sinking the bodies in the quarry.

Loren's confession said he had not worried over the killings, but had been prepared to confess if anyone else had been convicted of the crime.

Shooting Laid to Jealousy.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 2.—Police said jealousy was the reason for the shooting of Charles Schneider, truck gardener, by H. G. Mallicoat, middle-aged laborer.

OFFICER'S MEMORY FOR NUMBER LEADS TO WOMAN'S ARREST

By the Associated Press.
URBANA, O., Sept. 2.—A Deputy Marshal's memory for automobile license numbers led to the arrest yesterday of Mrs. Margaret Tappas at St. Paris, near here. She was charged with participating in a money order robbery at the post-office in Stendal Ind., July 17.

Mrs. Tappas was arrested by Deputy Marshal Carl Gurcham, who noticed the license number of an automobile parked at St. Paris corresponded to that carried in a Government circular. He seized the woman when she returned to the car.

Mrs. Tappas was held in St. Paris pending removal to Indianapolis for trial along with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Truckle, arrested in Indiana Aug. 31, and Roy Clayton, apprehended at Winchester, Ky., Aug. 25. Postal authorities said the four had been followed through Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky and West Virginia.

Strike Keeps Idler in Port.
AMSTERDAM, Sept. 2.—The sailing of the Holland-America liner Volendam has been held up by a seamen's strike in Dutch ports. The trouble started Wednesday. The seamen have refused to accept a wage cut, additional bitterness was caused by the placing of some Dutch ships under the British flag and the substitution of British for Dutch crews.

AUDITORIUM STRIKE HALTED

Work on the excavation for the new Municipal Auditorium, Fourteenth and Market streets, halted last Wednesday by a strike of union workmen, was resumed this morning after the Cable Motor Service Co., holding one of the subcontracts, agreed to allow its chauffeurs to join the Teamsters' Union. Officers of the Carlo company explained they have hired union steam shovel operators and laborers in the past, but had not previously been required to employ union drivers. The strike involved about 100 chauffeurs, laborers, iron workers, carpenters and electricians employed by other contractors.

Defines Battleship as "Point."
By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—A battleship is more than an instrument of warfare, the California Railroad Commission has decided. It is also a "point." The commission reached this definition of a battleship in ruling that operators of vessels carrying passengers to visit the fleet at anchor in San Francisco Bay must have licenses for operating between "points" in inland waters.

PASSENGER STATION IN MIDWEST BUILDING

Temporary Quarters to Be Arranged Pending Completion of North American Structure.

Temporary passenger station quarters for the Illinois Terminal System are to be arranged in the new Midwest Building on Twelfth boulevard between Morgan street and Lucas avenue.

A. P. Titus, vice-president of the Illinois Terminal, said plans for a passenger station in the new building are under consideration but have not been completed. Meanwhile the passenger station is at 1115 Franklin avenue.

The company's development plans call for a commodious passenger station in the new North American building at Twelfth boulevard and Washington avenue. There ticket offices and waiting rooms are to occupy the first floor, from which there will be direct access to the subway for boarding the electric trains.

Titus said it will be a year or more before the North American building can be completed and that meanwhile it is considered desirable to have a passenger station in the Midwest Building, erected as a freight station, warehouse and industrial building. The Midwest building, which cost about $2,000,000, is now ready for occupancy.

Work recently was suspended on the North American Building because of necessary changes in the plans to conform to the city building code. Titus said revision of the plans has not been completed and he could not say when work will be resumed.

SIKESTON LOSES SUIT TO OUST UTILITY

City Builds Own Plant After Franchise Expires, but Fails in Legal Action.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 2.—The City of Sikeston today lost in the Supreme Court its quo warranto suit to oust the Missouri Utilities Co., which has continued to operate there since expiration of its 20-year franchise, Dec. 16, 1932. For some time the utility has been operating in competition with Sikeston's $150,000 municipally-owned electric light and power plant.

The Supreme Court, in refusing to oust the utility, held that it is for the State Public Service Commission to determine whether there still exists any necessity for continuance of the service supplied by the company. One of the city's principal contentions in the suit was that necessity for such service ceased when the municipally-owned plant began operation.

After a detailed review of the case, Chief Justice Frank E. Atwood, who wrote the opinion, said it is "clearly in accord with right and justice to hold, as we do, that in the circumstances the doctrine of laches and stoppage apply," protecting the utility from being ousted.

"And realtor (the city) will not be heard to say that respondent (the company) is without right or authority to engage in the electric business in the City of Sikeston and have reasonable use of its streets, avenues and alleys in connection therewith," Judge Atwood said.

In its decision, Judge Atwood said he was "bearing in mind that counsel for respondent did not contend that at the expiration of the period fixed by a franchise from a city to a utility the city may not order the utility off the streets, or that at the expiration of the term such franchise rights of the utility do not cease, or that by continuing service alone the utility would acquire any renewal rights."

The city contended vigorously that there exists no public necessity for continuance of the electric service supplied by the Missouri Utilities, but Judge Atwood held that "is a matter peculiarly within the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission."

The quo warranto suit, an original proceeding in the Supreme Court, was filed in the name of Attorney-General Shartel after the utility had ignored the city's order of July 15, 1931, to vacate the city's streets and discontinue furnishing electric light and power service to residents of Sikeston.

The company contended that since Nov. 24, 1932, it had and still was lawfully operating in Sikeston by virtue of authority granted it under a certificate of the Public Service Commission. From Nov. 16, 1932, to July 15, 1931, the company claimed, it operated "without any objection whatever" from the city, that the city levied, assessed and collected taxes, and collected an annual license tax.

Two Girls Killed by Train.
By the Associated Press.
LESLIE, Md., Sept. 2.—Two girls, who took advantage of a temporary lull in work at the cannery where they were employed to go for a stroll, were struck and killed by a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad train yesterday. The girls were Mary Marshall, 17 years old, and Anna Michael, 17, both of Baltimore. They apparently did not hear the New York-Washington Express until too late.

FARRELL SAYS LAWS

SELDOM HELP TRADE

Ex-Head of U. S. Steel Sends Message to Business Conference.

By the Associated Press.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Sept. 2.—The growing dependence on governments and laws, both state and Federal, is an unhealthy symptom of the emotional strain which these difficult times have produced, said James A. Farrell, former president of the United States Steel Corporation in an address which he sent to be read today at the Intermountain Economic Conference here. The conference is discussing business problems of mountain states.

Farrell, who is chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council, added that "the power of government or legislation to help trade is greatly over-estimated. A people grows prosperous through peace,
industry and the removal of unnecessary restrictions on freedom of initiative.

"In our own and other countries in recent times attempts to stabilize prices by means of pools and other artificial devices have not only failed of their purpose
but contributed to the confusion of world price decline. No government regulations or plans that offend against recognized economic laws can have permanent value as a solvent of temporary difficulties.

Predicts Foreign Demand.
"What is so frequently spoken of as over-production is really under-consumption and for this condition in a world of plenty we must fix responsibility on the complication of causes which undermined the credit structure of world trade.

"There is some satisfaction in the reflection that the heavy decline in orders for our finished manufactures has accumulated unsatisfied wants in foreign countries which, with the first assurance of returning normalcy, will mean a heavy demand upon our industrial capacity.

"While it is not my intention to enter upon a controversial field,
I feel I voice the view of American business in expressing the opinion that whatever faults may be alleged against our tariff policy from the standpoint of high tariff or low, the chief complaint of the business man is not with regard to the height of the tariff so much as the frequency of revision, which lends uncertainty to his best-laid plans for the future. No country can afford by uneconomic practices to destroy its partnership in world trade."

Message From President.
Business men at the conference yesterday received a message from President Hoover wishing them success in their efforts to attain greater development of the intermountain territory through business co-ordination. Mr. Hoover's message read:

"In the difficult period through which business is passing much can be accomplished by proper correlation of objectives through such meetings as the Intermountain Economic Conference. The national administration has devoted its efforts over the past two and one-half years to constructive measures designed to defend our country and to give the necessary impetus to recovery. These measures are showing fruitful results.

"There is still great need for the business public to better understand the use which these instrumentalities can best be put to I hope your conference will find the opportunity to review the constructive phases of these new movements to the end that business men in the great intermountain territory may summon that great reserve of private initiative without which the Government cannot alone succeed.

"May I wish you a very successful and constructive conference."

SUES FOR RECEIVER, CLAIMING $15,000 INTEREST IN FIRMPlaintiff Says Business Was Acquired With Profits of Partnership Enterprises.

Suit for a receiver and an accounting was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Novin Mossidis against the O-Bey Ice Cream Co., 1924 Franklin avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Federico Vellois, its owners.
Mossidis asserts that the ice cream concern was acquired two years ago with the profits of various business ventures, including two restaurants, a poolroom, and the Celsus Candy Kitchen, which he and Vellois operated as partners.
Mr. and Mrs. Vellois, according to the petition, incorporated the firm several months ago with Mossidis' knowledge, and own all the stock.
The plaintiff says he has $15,000 due from the business, and asks the court to determine his interest.
Vellois could not be reached.

JAPAN TO TAKE OVER DEFENSE OF
NEW MANCHURIARight to Station Troops in Manchukuo Provided in Treaty to Be Approved
Before Sept. 15.NOT PROTECTORATE, TOKIO DECLARESPu-yi Government Said to Retain Independence in Foreign Relations and Financial Matters.By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, Sept. 2.—Japan will understand the internal and external defense of the new Manchurian state, Manchukuo, under the terms of a basic treaty to be signed between the two Governments before Sept. 15.This was disclosed by the Foreign office, which announced there were no "secret clauses" in the document. The pact will give Japan the right to station troops throughout Manchukuo, under the terms
of a basic treaty to be signed between the two Governments before Sept. 15.The agreement will provide a defensive alliance between the Governments and a guarantee of mutual respect for territory and soverignty. It will be submitted to the Imperial Diet for approval.As soon as the treaty has been signed, Manchukuo will automatically obtain Japanese recognition, said Gen. Nobuyoshi Muto, who has been designated to affix Japan's signature, will become Ambassador in Tokyo. Gen. Muto now is in Nanking.The treaty probably will be submitted to the Japanese Privy Council next week and approved by the Emperor before Gen. Muto proceeds to Changchun, the Manchukuo capital, for the formal ceremony of signing.A Government spokesman declared the agreement would not make Manchukuo a protectorate under Japan since it leaves the new state independent in the matters of foreign relations and finances.
He also asserted the treaty would accord Japan no rights beyond those previously embodied in the Japanese-Manchukuo agreements.The treaty between Japan and Manchukuo will be signed almost a year after Japanese troops took the field in Manchuria.
After Japan had won the victory with violence and violation of treaty rights along the South Manchuria Railway.The Government of Marshal Hsueh-shang was unseated
by the Japanese began setting up their military headquarters in all the strategic cities of the country.
Gen. Pu-yi, former boy Emperor of China, appeared in Changchun,
and the Government of Manchukuo was formed, with Pu-yi as its head.No foreign nations have recognized Manchukuo, hence so far as the world is concerned Manchukuo is still a part of China proper.
Protests followed establishment

REVOLT QUELLED; NEW PRESIDENT IN ECUADORHead of Senate Takes Office
After Last of the Rebels
Surrender.By the Associated Press.
QUITO, Ecuador, Sept. 2.—Loyalist troops forced the surrender of the last contingent of rebels today,
and Alberto Guerrero Martinez, president of the Senate, was installed as Acting President of the Republic.Martinez occupied the presidential chair for a time in 1924, during the illness of President Corcoba. He has been active in politics for many years and on at least one occasion was arrested by the ruling powers on charges of plot-ting their downfall. He arrived here this afternoon with Leonardo Sotomayor, the Minister of War,
after the rebel surrender.The capital was won at considerable cost, however, for in the last three days Quito has seen the heaviest fighting in the modern history of the republic. Red Cross workers estimated 380 men had been killed and 732 wounded during artillery bombardments and close fighting.Loyal troops fought their way into the city yesterday, advancing under cover of machine-gun fire to mop up the streets with bayonets. Rebel sharpshooters hidden on the roofs harried the loyalists,
but when the first regiment reached the Congressional Palace
the battle ended.RUSSIA INCREASES FOOD PRICES FOR SECOND TIME THIS YEARRise in Meat, Eggs and Butter Due to Shortage Chiefly Affects Foreigners.By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, Sept. 2.—The second rise in food prices this year was decreed by the Government today when ration cards heavily increased the cost of meat, eggs, cheese and sour cream, of which there is an acute shortage.Eggs jumped from one ruble for 10 to three rubles and a half; the best cheese from six rubles and a half to 14 rubles per kilogram, and the secondary grade from 2.60 rubles to six rubles. The price of sour cream went from three rubles to four and a half rubles a kilogram, and meat from 1.45 rubles to 2.15 rubles per kilogram. (A ruble is nominally valued at 50 cents and a kilogram is equal to 2.2 pounds.)Since most of the products involved have not been available for some time in native stores, Americans and other foreigners were chiefly affected by the rise because these foods usually are stocked in the two stores operated for foreigners recently were cut in half.

MARKED DROP IN OIL IMPORTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Crude oil and gasoline imports showed a marked decline in July compared to June, before the excise tax on these commodities became effective. Figures made public today by the Commerce Department showed a decline in imports of crude petroleum from 162,232 barrels daily in June to 43,205 in July,
the lowest daily average in many years. Gasoline imports dropped from the daily average of 43,871 barrels in June to 20,811 in July.
The excise tax on oil imports became effective June 21. Fuel and crude oil is taxed a half a cent a gallon, while gasoline is taxed 3 1/2 cents a gallon. Crude petroleum imports during July averaged 72, 571 barrels daily, a reduction of 20,451 barrels from the June average, while gasoline exports declined by 42,970 barrels to a daily average of 125,325.Tallant Tubbs, G. O. P.
Senatorial Nominee in California, Wealthy but Also Popular 'South of Market Street.'By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—In the wake of a fanciful, scrambled senatorial primary, California Republicans are taking stock of their party's prospects under the titular leadership of 34-year-old Tallant Tubbs, scion of one of San Francisco's oldest and wealthiest families.Without the support of any recognized political faction, the debonnaire San Franciscan, born to yachts and social position, rode to a surprising victory over the veteran Senator Samuel M. Shortridge.
More surprising still, the son of wealth and fortune rolled up a San Francisco "south of Market street"
vote of proportions hitherto reserved for the hard-boiled district's favorite offspring, "Sunny Jim" Rolph, now Governor of the State.Dry Vote Was Split.
The inevitable aftermath of a complex political campaign could find many explanations—no previous foreseen—of the Tubbs victory.
For one thing, the big dry vote of Southern California was split between the crusading Rev. "Bob"
Shuler and the equally "bone dry" Representative Joseph Crail.But it does not explain how a slim, trim, collegiate appearing native son could overcome the influence and prestige of his chief opponent's 12 years of office holding."Well, I guess baseball helped a little," the Republican senatorial nominee said. "You see I've been a nut about baseball ever since I was a kid and I was always wandering over on the South Side, observing teams and playing ball.
That helped me to get acquainted with the boys south of the slot.""I also learned there that it's the mental attitude that counts. So when I decided to run for the Senate I made up my mind to meet personally what I stood for, and would try to do it. I made my me into a lot of arguments, but it was a lot of fun, too."For Straight Out Repeal.
"Well, I guess that personal angle was what did it, that and the knowledge that I don't believe in pussy-footing. My supporters know if they voted for me it meant a vote for straight out repeal and no ifs and ands."In his campaign, Tubbs flew more than 20,000 miles in an autogyro, his name painted on the under wing. He visited almost every county in the State. Of the five Republican candidates he was the only one to receive the endorsement of the California Federation of Labor.Elected to the State Senate when 25 years old, the young man was to be seated in the upper branch of the Legislature, Tubbs began his political career as an opponent of Prohibition. He opposed the prohibition, he said, because he was called "Jones still him," which would have made possession of a still prima facie evidence of guilt and sought to repeal the State's prohibition enforcement act.Gov. Roosevelt Sends Congratu-

BASIC WAGE CUT
OF 20 PER CENTNotice to Be Served on Unions in October—Step Follows 10 Pct. Reduction Last Winter.By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A 20 per cent basic wage reduction, it was reported today, is to be sought by the railroads of the country, and notices to that effect are expected to be served on the various unions
Oct. 1.The decision to begin proceedings for an adjustment of the basic wage scale, it was said, was made by a committee of nine officers representing the managements of all the principal transportation systems. It was understood the proposed notices, while calling for a flat 20 per cent cut, would at the same time suggest that the question be arbitrated.The workers' organizations last winter accepted a "temporary" pay reduction of 10 per cent which began Feb. 1, and is to continue for one year. The proposed basic reduction would supersede this agreement.Railway executives for some time have been discussing the further adjustment of wages. It was understood the Eastern lines were generally agreeable to a renewal of the present reduced rates when they expire next spring. At the same time, most of the Western roads, it was reported, insisted on a basic cut of 20 or 25 per cent from the level prevailing before the present reduction was made.If the proposed notices are served Oct. 1, it is expected negotiations, including arbitration, mediation, etc., will require several months, consequently transportation managements wish to start proceedings as soon as possible.SWANSON MAKES HOPEFUL

Some Agreements.By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The view that concessions to the German demand for arms equality with other nations might possibly "cause France to refrain from signing some of the agreements we hope for," was expressed yesterday by Senator Swanson (Dem., Va.), an American delegate to the Gene-

as he left the White House where,
he said, he reported to President Hoover that he was "not optimistic but hopeful—more hopeful than when I started—that something substantial can be accomplished" by the Geneva talks.The Virginian said: "The American delegation took no stand at Geneva upon the German (arms equality) proposal, believing it was a matter between European nations."It was made clear at the State Department that this Government stands firmly for reductions in armaments and American markets increases and will seek by all legiti-mate means to influence radical reductions in defense expenditures world around as a means of bettering economic conditions.U. S. SEEKS TO REVISE

CIRCUS FINDS BUSINESS BETTER THAN EXPECTED

Season One of Most Surprising for Ringling Shows, Which Open Here Tomorrow.

The Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, nearing the close of one of its most surprising seasons since P. T. Barnum put the show on rails in 1872, will open its annual three-day St. Louis engagement tomorrow afternoon at Grand Boulevard and Laclede avenue. "There were so many blue notes" last February that rumors arose in New York theatrical circles that the big show wouldn't go out at all this year—at least, that it wouldn't go outside the big East. Last year, when the depression was only in its second year, it was recalled, the show dropped $17,000 in its first week in the Middle West.

But an encouraging attendance at the opening of the season April 2 at Madison Square Garden, with no reduction from the New York scale of a $350 top. Attendance in Pittsburgh, Detroit and Cleveland, which was "terrible" last year, was better this season. Only Three Losing Weeks. Chicago, which was supposed to be "rough" on the show business this year, provided the biggest attendance there for four years, and the circus encounters only three losing weeks all season—two in New York State, with constant rains, and one in the corn belt, before late summer rains save prospects of a crop.

This year the circus will stay on the road until early October. Last year poor business caused it to head for winter quarters on Sept. 14—"and," the press agent added, "that last week, between St. Louis and Atlanta, was one of the biggest of the season. But it was too late then to change plans."

The depression is not the first experience of the sort that the circus has survived. It has gone through a panic or two, as well as the "blue slump" of 1921. It was in one of such years, 1907, that the Ringling brothers bought out Barnum & Bailey. The Barnum shows had been going since 1872, and the Ringling circus since 1889, and now the combined shows have weathered all the fluctuations of business since 1918.

1600 People With Show. $6000 trains bearing the 1600 people, 50 elephants, 500 horses and large menagerie are due from Jefferson City early tomorrow. The big top to be erected on the old baseball lot at Grand and Laclede will seat 16,000 persons at the road side of 75 cents, with box seats at $2.50. Performances will be given at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. tomorrow, Sunday and Monday.

In the circus are 800 performers and 100 clowns. Besides the familiar features, headed by Alfredo of the Flying Colonias, who turns a somersault in midair to a hand-to-hand catch, there are a number of new importations, including a new Ubangi tribe from central Africa, "Bambayo, the man from India," Tamara, a Russian, and the Cannestrella, balancing ladder artists.

FATHER DEMPSEY LEAVES FOR VACATION IN IRELAND
Pastor to Be Gone Six Weeks; Last Visit to Native Country in 1925.

Father "Tim" Dempsey, pastor of St. Patrick's Church and sponsor of the charitable enterprise in his parish, departed yesterday for a six weeks' visit to his native Ireland. His charities, including the emergency luncheon at 1209 North Sixth street, will continue to operate under the direction of the assistant pastor, the Rev. Martin P. Phelan.

The return to the "old country" will be Mr. Dempsey's fourth since he came to America 41 years ago as a young priest of 24. His last visit was in 1925. The present trip is being made on the advice of a physician, the elder priest having spent many weeks under medical care during the past year. He will spend much of his time at his boyhood home in Killybeg, Ireland, and he expects to return to St. Louis about Oct. 15. Next March he will celebrate his thirty-fifth year in charge of the parish.

MISSOURI OZARKS READY FOR LABOR DAY VISITORS
Largest Crowds of Season Expected at State Parks Over Holiday Period.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 2.—Missouri's Ozarks made ready today for thousands of fishermen, campers, picknickers and vacationists expected during the Labor day holidays, extending from Saturday to Tuesday. The State Game and Fish Department predicted the Ozarks would attract their largest crowds since the opening of the summer resort season.

Although many of the area's principal fishing streams have not been in the best of condition this week, indications are the department's bulletin said, that a few streams will be sufficiently clear for either artificial or live bait fishing by Sunday.

Missouri's three principal resort regions, the Big Spring country, the Lake of the Ozarks and Lake Taneycomo areas, are planning special events for Labor day. Railroad excursion rates are to be in effect to those sections.

E. L. Schofield, Chief of Parks, predicted that Meramec State Park, 65 miles from St. Louis, would attract 10,000 persons. Big Spring State Park in Carter County also is expecting a large crowd. Montauk State Park in Dade County, Bennett Spring State Park in Dallas and Laclede counties, and Reardon River State Park in Barry County are recommended as trout fishing sites. An addition to Meramec and Big Spring parks, Arrow State Park in Saline County, Mark Twain State Park in Monroe County and Sam A. Baker State Park in Wayne County are recommended for picknicking.

SAYS IODINE IN BLOOD CONTROLS ONE'S SLEEP

English Scientist Reports Slumber Comes When Thyroxin Supply Is Diminished.

By the Associated Press.

YORK, England, Sept. 2.—Sleep seems to be controlled by the amount of iodine in the blood, according to Dr. G. S. Carter, who explained his theory yesterday to the British Association for the Advancement of Science. Thyroxin, the iodine-containing secretion of the thyroid gland, apparently is the sleep-controlling substance, he said; sleep comes when the supply of thyroxin in the blood is decreased. The winter-long hibernation of many animals also seems to be controlled by thyroxin, Dr. Carter said his experiments showed. He tried thyroxin on frogs, which have a different body temperature and pulse rate in winter when hibernating than in summer. When thyroxin was added to the heart of a hibernating frog, the frog's temperature and pulse increased to the summer level.

Dr. G. W. C. Kaye told the association that if the entire population of London were to shout, the noise would produce only one horsepower of energy. Even if all the Londoners should keep on shouting as loudly as possible for two minutes the acoustical energy expended would generate barely enough heat to make one cup of tea for one Londoner.

Unpleasant noises, he went on, can be shut out more effectively by isolating them than by using sound-absorbing walls and other such devices.

Baron Rothschild, zoologist, told the scientists that no two fleas are alike. $5 variable is a nature that a million billion fleas would be needed to find two specimens alike in the number and position of the bristles on their bodies. Baron Rothschild maintains the world's most famous collection of fleas in his own private museum.

SAN DIEGO ZOO SALE ATTACKED BY LAWYER

Its Transfer to State for Taxes After Nobody Bids Declared to Be Void.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 2.—After the failure of an attempt to sell the zoo at auction here for taxes a question has arisen concerning the regularity of the transaction. J. H. Johnson, County Assessor, ruling that the zoo had failed to pay $6000 in personal property taxes undertook to sell the 2400 animals to satisfy the claim. He failed to get a bid. Johnson thereupon declared the zoo "sold to the State" under the statutory delinquency procedure.

Thomas Whelan, County District Attorney, ruled that the sale of the zoo to the State was void "for a variety of reasons." The matter cannot be straightened out until the County Supervisors meet next Monday morning.

Whelan suggested that the supervisors order him to bring an action to collect the tax and so determine whether Johnson's contention that the animals in the zoo are taxable can be sustained. The city then would enter the case as an intervenor, claiming the property belongs to the city, is held by the city in trust for the children of San Diego and is therefore un-taxable. Yesterday the question arose facetiously, but still with a certain amount of possibility, that Johnson or the State or both might be charged rent by the zoo, pending settlement of the problem. And meanwhile the zoo inmates must eat. Mrs. Belle Benchley, director of the zoo, said the monthly feed bill was about $1000. Incidentally, the zoo appropriation in the San Diego city budget last week was materially reduced from last year's appropriation of nearly $15,000.

In addition to that amount, the zoo management collects several thousand dollars a year in admission charges. The zoo is owned by the San Diego Zoological Society, a private corporation with a municipal subsidy. It is situated in a city park. It owns many rare specimens, including one of the only two walrus in captivity in the United States; two Northern elephant seals; two Southern fur seals; a pair of gorillas; two Bengal tigers; one wombat; a California condor and several man-of-war birds.

CABBAGE WRAPPINGS FOR MEAT AND ONION

Leaves Baked With Dressing and Served With Tomato Sauce.

A friend who has just returned from abroad tells us that cabbage is a slightly vegetable here compared to the frequency and variety of its appearance on menus of many other countries.
In Norway she enjoyed cabbage rolls stuffed with meat, which were prepared as follows:
Cut the stalk from a large head of cabbage and remove 12 of the largest leaves. Use the rest of the cabbage for slaw, another meal. Dip each cabbage leaf in boiling water to soften it so that it can be rolled. If the center rib is large it may be necessary to soak the leaf for a minute or two to soften it sufficiently. Mix three cups chopped cooked left-over meat with two teaspoons salt, one teaspoon poultry seasoning, one small onion chopped fine, a beaten egg and three tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs. Mix very thoroughly.

Put a tablespoon of the mixture on each cabbage leaf and roll tightly so that the meat is entirely enclosed. Fasten with toothpicks. Melt three tablespoons butter or drippings in a deep saucepan. Sprinkle cabbage rolls with flour and brown quickly in the hot fat. You will probably have to cook part of them at a time.
Return all the browned rolls to the saucepan and add two cups tomato juice, a sliced onion and one-half cup boiling water. Cover closely and cook slowly for 40 minutes until the rolls are very tender. Remove to a hot platter and thicken gravy with a little flour mixed to a smooth paste with cold water. Pour the sauce over the rolls and serve very hot.

USE VEAL LEFT-OVERS IN VARIED RECIPES

Souffle, Salad and Shortcakes Are Among Possible Combinations.

It's worth buying a little larger veal shoulder for Sunday dinner order that there may be enough left over to use the next day in some of these appetizing recipes.
Perhaps the usual scraps will be enough, however, as it does not take very much for any of them as the secret lies in savory combinations.
Souffle of Veal.
Chop cold veal to make two cupsful. Melt four tablespoons butter, add five tablespoons flour and stir until well blended. Then stir in two cups milk and continue cooking and stirring until thickened, smooth and boiling. Remove from fire, add veal, one teaspoon minced parsley, salt and pepper to season, one teaspoon lemon juice and the beaten yolks of three eggs. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff and fold into mixture. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven—275 degrees—for 25 minutes, then increase heat and continue cooking for 15 minutes more until golden brown, and well puffed. Serve at once.
Veal and Orange Salad.
Cut cold veal into small even shaped dice to make three cupsful. Mix with one cup cold sliced potatoes or cold boiled rice. Season with salt and pepper and moisten with thin mayonnaise lightly flavored with grated onion. Chill and arrange in a mound on a bed of shredded lettuce. Cut three or four firm, peeled oranges across in thin slices, cut each slice in half and arrange slices overlapping in layers around meat. Just before serving pour a dressing over the whole salad made by beating together one-third cup salad oil, two tablespoons vinegar, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika and one teaspoon minced parsley. Serve very cold.
Veal Shortcakes.
Chop cold veal to make three cupsful. Melt two tablespoons butter, add four tablespoons flour and then stir in one and one-half cups milk and one-half cup cold gravy. Stir until thickened and boiling, season with one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, minced parsley, salt, pepper and paprika. Split six large hot baking powder biscuits, pour the meat mixture between and on top and serve at once.
Combination Veal Salad.
Mix together three cupsful cold, diced veal, one cup cooked peas, one shredded green pepper, one cup diced celery. Add one-half cup well flavored French dressing and let stand 30 minutes. Drain, add mayonnaise to moisten and arrange on crisp lettuce. Garnish with quarters of ripe chilled tomatoes and serve with small hot rolls and potato chips.

THREE APPETIZING WAYS OF SERVING SARDINES

Sandwich.
Mix one cup minced sardines, one-half cup stuffed olives, one teaspoon scraped onion, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one tablespoon lemon juice and three tablespoons salad dressing and spread between buttered slices of brown or white bread.

Canape.
Butter and heat racks. Pound sardines into a paste, add equal amount of chopped hard-boiled egg. Season with lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Spread on racks. Garnish with slice of hard-boiled egg.

Toast.
Blend one-half medium sized can sardines, one-fourth cup minced olives, one hard-boiled egg and one tablespoon mayonnaise thoroughly and spread on slices of buttered toast.

MAYONNAISE VARIATIONS

One egg yolk, two tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice, one-half teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, paprika to taste, one drop tobasco sauce, three-fourths to one cup salad oil.
Mix the seasonings with one tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice; add the yolk of egg and beat slightly. Then begin adding oil, a teaspoon or two at a time, beating thoroughly each time. When enough oil has been added to make the mixture thick, add the remaining oil and gradually beat in the rest of the oil.

To vary the above dressing, put two ripe olives, two small pickles, one celery stalk and half a green pepper through the food chopper and mix with a cup of the mayonnaise.

RICE CROQUETTES WITH JELLY

Mix two cups boiled rice with one slightly beaten raw egg. One tablespoon sugar, one and one-half tablespoons melted butter or substitute one-half teaspoon flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, dash of paprika and one-half teaspoon chopped parsley.
Mix well, make into croquettes, let stand for an hour to harden, then roll in egg and crumbs and fry golden brown in deep fat. If the tops of the croquettes are denting in the center with the bowl of a teaspoon before frying, a bit of jelly may be put in each.

Ham Loaf.
One pound beef, one-half pound ham, one-half pound pork, three rusks, three cups milk, one egg, salt and pepper. Put eggs into meat, then seasonings, then the rusk (crumbled), and milk, soaked together, and bake two and one-half hours.

LEARN MEAT CUTS AND GRADES TO SHOP WELL

Expert Gives Advice Which Aids in Careful Selection.

It is easy enough to be a smart shopper when buying fruits, vegetables and the staple line of foods, but it is another story when it comes to the purchasing of meat. It is necessary to have a knowledge of the different meat cuts and also the quality characteristics of meat before one can be classed as a good meat shopper. An explanation of points to be considered is given by a prominent food economist director.
Meat in good condition is firm, bulky and odorless. To be palatable, meat must be tender, juicy and well flavored. The proportion of fat to lean affects the flavor.
Tenderness is judged by the texture of the lean—the grain of the meat should be fine and as free as possible from connective tissue, stringiness and gristle. The meat should be firm, and have a smooth velvety appearance, and be well marbled or mottled with fat. There should be a good outer covering or coating of the same creamy white fat. A red, porous, soft bone indicates a young animal and therefore more tender meat.
Good beef should be a light to medium red in color and have a good covering of creamy white fat. Veal, which is the flesh of the young beef animal, is a grayish pink, almost a white in color, with a scanty covering of firm fat. The meat is of a very fine grain, fairly firm, velvety in texture and not marbled or mottled with fat. The bone is porous, soft and red and the ends of some of the bones are still pliable.

Lamb and Mutton.
Lamb is a rich pinkish red in color. The meat is fine grained, firm and of a velvety texture. A fair covering and some mottling of fat insures a good flavor. The bone of young lamb is porous and red in color. The forefoot ankle joint is jagged or uneven, showing that the bone was sufficiently porous to break the fore foot joint. This is known as the "break joint" and is found only in lamb.
The mutton carcass is larger than the lamb. The flesh or meaty portions are a grayish or brick red in color. The flesh should be fine grained and it should have a rather thick outer covering of white, brittle fat.
The lean of fresh pork from a good young carcass is a grayish white, turning to a delicate rose color in the older animal. It is firm and velvety in texture and fine, smooth grained. The lean should be well marbled and covered with a white, smooth, firm fat, free from fibers.

Picnic.
Two quarts green tomatoes, three small onions, one-quarter cup salt, one sweet green pepper, one sweet red pepper, one pint chopped celery, one and one-half cups brown sugar, one and one-half cups vinegar, one-quarter cup mixed spice.
Chop tomatoes and onions, cover with salt and let stand over night. Drain and add chopped peppers and celery, sugar, vinegar and the spices tied in a cheesecloth bag. Simmer until tender, about two and one-half hours. Turn into sterilized jars and seal.

PLANNING THE MENU RECIPES FOR THE WEEK

Make the Most of Fruits and Vegetables While They Last.

There is not much new to suggest in meals at this time, but we urge again that seasonable foods be foremost.

While fruits and many vegetables are still plentiful, use them as freely as possible, both for health and economy measures.

Labor day menus planning will be found in another column today, as will also recipes for two dinner dishes on the week's menus—cabbage rolls with tomato sauce and baked liver with vegetables.

Bartlett pears baked whole and at a low temperature so that they are unbroken and transparent are a specialty of a famous tea room in New York. They make a delicious dessert or an attractive breakfast fruit. Choose ripe, perfect pears, peel and place in a deep baking dish. Add sugar to barely cover, cover the dish and bake at 325 degrees for an hour or until tender and deep gold in color. Serve cold with cream or plain. Seckle pears may be baked in a spice syrup or in a sugar syrup to which strips of lemon or orange peel are added.

Peach Loaf Cake. Cream together one-half cup shortening and one and one-fourth cups sugar. When thoroughly blended add the beaten yolk of two eggs and beat until smooth. Then stir in one cup milk. Sift two and one-half cups flour with one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon grated nutmeg and two and one-half teaspoons baking powder. Stir into the liquid mixture and when mixed add one and one-half cups mashed and drained peaches and the beaten whites of two eggs.

Four into a greased loaf-cake pan and bake in a moderate oven for about 40 minutes. Or pour into a greased shallow pan and cut in squares for serving. Ice with white or orange icing when cold.

Stewed Fresh Corn. Husk young, tender ears of corn and cut the kernels from the cobs, using a sharp knife. Put the corn in a double boiler with just enough milk to cover and salt and pepper to season. Have the water in the lower part of the double boiler boiling and cook the corn for 15 to 20 minutes. Remember that foods cooked in a double boiler must be timed from the time the water in the lower compartment starts to boil. Add one tablespoon butter to each two cups corn just before serving. If cooked too long the corn may toughen; taste at the end of 15 minutes and then cook longer if necessary.

Sautéed Corn and Green Peppers. Corn boiled on the cob is used for this. Boil and cool six ears of corn, then cut kernels from cobs with a sharp knife. Measure corn and to two cupsful, measured by packing the corn down in the cup, add one shredded green pepper from which the seeds have been removed. Melt two tablespoons butter in a heavy frying pan, add the corn and peppers, salt to season and three tablespoons cream or top milk. Cover pan and cook slowly for five minutes. Then uncover and cook, stirring frequently, until corn begins to brown slightly. Turn out on a hot platter and serve for a hearty dish with poached eggs arranged on top.

Jellied Peas. Use ripe, juicy peas for this and have them thoroughly chilled. Dissolve a package of strawberry flavored gelatin in one cup boiling water, then add one-half cup cold water and one tablespoon lemon juice. Pour an inch layer of this in a shallow pan and set aside to chill and harden. Keep the rest of gelatin at room temperature to keep it liquid. When mixture in pan is firm, peel four ripe peas, cut in half, remove cores and seeds and then slice peas in quarter-inch slices. Place these close together on the gelatin, pour the rest of the liquid gelatin over fruit and set the whole thing aside to chill. Serve in squares with a spoonful of whipped cream on each portion.

STUFFED CUCUMBER SALAD

Allow a medium sized cucumber for each serving. Cut a slice lengthwise from top of each and remove seeds, leaving a shell about one-third inch thick. Four one tablespoon tart French dressing in each cucumber and let stand in a cold place for at least 30 minutes. Drain, peel and arrange on lettuce. Fill each with crabapples or tuna fish mixed with celery, chopped olives and mayonnaise. Garnish with lettuce and quartered tomatoes.

It is no longer considered necessary to soak cucumbers in salted water before using. Indeed, such a practice lessens their food value, as it soaks out some of the valuable mineral salts. Select young, firm ones, medium in size and a fresh green in color.

BOILED CHICKEN PIE.

Cut up a fat fowl into pieces. Wash in salt and water. Put in pot which has a close-fitting cover, add one-fourth pound fat salt pork cut in cubes, and cover with water. Put on the pot lid and cook until chicken is tender. Turn off pot.

liquor, season it with salt and pepper and thicken it with two tablespoons flour blended with two tablespoons butter or chicken fat. Add one-half cup rich milk and turn back with chicken, cooking until it is sufficiently thick. Have ready rich biscuit dough, roll out, about one-half inch thick. Cut in small rounds. Lay these closely over top of chicken, put on the pot lid, and a thick towel over that and boil without stopping for 20 minutes, then serve as soon as possible.

PARENTS' AID NEEDED IN SCHOOL PROGRAMS

Responsibility Not Entirely With Teachers; Nutrition Is Important Item.

Now that the vacation period is over and the youngsters getting back to school we fear some mothers will breathe a sigh of thankfulness and calmly shift responsibility for most of the daylight hours to the teacher. However, it is good to know that more parents are showing an active interest in co-operating with the school authorities now, though they may not even yet appreciate what the school is trying to accomplish or how necessary it is to have their help in developing successful health and nutrition programs.

When Johnny brings his first report card home it probably will be a good one; he has had a long vacation and presumably has spent most of it outdoors and is in fairly good physical condition. But perhaps next month he will fall behind a little in his studies. Various reasons may be found for this but one of the biggest ones is malnutrition—not necessarily getting too little food, but the wrong kind of food or not enough of the right kind; too little rest and being subjected to too great emotional or nervous strain.

The child himself is not always to blame, and he should not be scolded for something that is not entirely his fault. The parent is often the one to censure, and right now is a good time to urge parents to help their children by keeping closer tabs on their physical condition.

Many Requirements.
Right food and plenty of it is essential to proper growth and development, but it is not everything. Watch your child's weight, his posture, general spirits and powers of co-ordination. Check up on his school marks, and when he falls behind, be sure that the fault is not a physical one before scolding him. There are many cases of sheer inattention and mischief on the part of high spirited youngsters that account for low marks—these are easy to detect and with them we are not concerned at this moment. It is the below-par children we are calling attention to.

Nutritionists point out the necessity for something besides food in the successful working out of a nutrition program. Schools having some sort of such a program need the active co-operation of parents as well as children if it is to be worth while. Mothers are always tried to see that their children are well fed, that they have enough to eat, go to bed early and follow the general rules of hygiene. But it is in the close supervision of all these health rules that the final results of good nutrition are attained. The right kind of food is a most important item. Happiness, a good mental and physical formation of good health habits, the right kind of play, congenial playmates, and a congenial atmosphere at home are important also.

Local, state and federal agencies are constantly working to better the condition of our children. When you are not sure of your next step, take advantage of the help the experts are ready and waiting to give you. Consult with your child's teacher, or with a home demonstration or nutrition worker. Join the parent-teacher organization in your school. In some adult classes are held in parental education and for the study of child behavior and the discussion of family relationship problems.

The parent-teacher organization, Federal Bureau of the Department of Agriculture and the United States Office of Education can give you help in many directions. Learn all you can of our school system and its administration—courses and methods have changed considerably since you went to school, and they are changing all the time. It behooves every intelligent mother and father to know something of the methods used if they are to be able to give any kind of intelligent answers to the questions that the children are sure to ask. Keep abreast of the time; in effect go to school with Johnny, and above all, give your warm co-operation, and help to the health and nutrition program organized in your local school. Take time? Of course it does, but it is time well spent, and will be doubly worth while in the better understanding it will be sure to bring about between you and your children and your and your community.

BEEF LIVER SAVORY BAKED IN VEGETABLES

Cheaper Variety May Be Delicious if Carefully Prepared.

Unfortunately, liver in many households means only occasional serving calves' liver with bacon for breakfast.

Beef liver is cheaper and makes a satisfactory luncheon or dinner main dish, when baked with vegetables.

Remember, liver is rich in some minerals and vitamins and is a valuable food, indeed. Never buy any liver unless it is fresh and bright in color and utterly free from any discolorations.

Brown First.
Buy one and one-half pounds beef liver in one piece. Rinse in cold water, drain and sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour. Melt three tablespoons butter or drippings in a heavy frying pan, add a large sliced onion and cook slowly until the onion is yellow. Add the liver and brown quickly, adding more fat if necessary. Transfer meat to a baking dish, pour onion over it and add one-half cup diced white turnips, one-half cup diced celery, one-fourth cup diced carrots, one-half cup boiling water, one-half teaspoon seasoning, sauce and one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Cover dish and bake in a moderate oven for 40 minutes. Several slices of bacon placed over the liver will add greatly to the flavor. When done remove liver to a platter and cut in slices for serving. Rub the vegetables through a coarse strainer, return to gravy in pan, stir in two teaspoons flour and then one-half cup water. Cook until slightly thickened and pour over the liver.

MANY RECIPES ARE DELICIOUS SERVED ON NUTRITIOUS RUSKS

Chicken à la King.
Melt one-fourth cup of butter, add one-half chopped green pepper, one cup of mushrooms, stir and saute three or four minutes. Add two teaspoons of flour, one-half teaspoon salt, cook until frothy. Add a pint of milk, stir until thick. Add three cups of diced chicken. Keep warm. Cream yolks of three eggs, one-fourth cup butter, one tablespoon lemon juice, one teaspoon onion juice, one teaspoon paprika. Stir this into chicken mixture and serve on hot buttered rusks.

Creamed Crab Meat.
Melt two tablespoons butter, add one-half green pepper shredded fine and stir constantly until pepper is softened, but do not let the butter or pepper brown in the least. Add two cups crabmeat, and stir until butter is absorbed. Add a dash of paprika, one-half teaspoon of cream. Let heat over hot water. Then stir in beaten yolk of egg, mixed with half cup of cream. Stir and let cook until the egg is set. Then add a dash of lemon or orange juice. Serve on whole rusks.

Shirred Eggs.
Line ramekins with buttered rusk crumbs. Break an egg into a saucer and gently slide it into the ramekin, dust with salt, pepper and buttered rusk crumbs and bake about 10 minutes in a moderate oven.

Baked Apple With Rusks.
Core good baking apples and bake in the usual fashion. (A flavo-rous touch is the substitution of brown sugar for the ordinary granulated.) When apples are done, place rusks in the dishes in which the apples are to be served and pour the syrup from the baking pan over all. Serve with cream.

Corn Beef and Vegetables.
Roll and tie the corned beef in shape. Wipe and place in a kettle, cover with water and bring slowly to boiling point. Boil for five minutes; remove scum and cook at a low temperature until tender four to six hours. When meat has been boiling four hours, add cabbage, onions, turnip, potatoes, carrots. Vegetables require one hour to cook.

MAN GIVES HINTS ON ANGEL CAKE SUCCESS

Speedy Action After Cream of Tartar Is Added Necessary.

We have discovered a brave man who dares what many women are afraid to undertake, for he makes angel food cakes. Moreover, his cakes turn out deliciously light and fluffy.

And he does not stop there, for with every baking of an angel cake he uses the yolks of the eggs to make gold cakes, his recipe for which follows:

Important Point.

"One of the important points in successful angel cake baking is the element," says our culinary expert. "Every ingredient should be added after the cream of tartar is added to the beaten whites of eggs, for the chemical action starts immediately after its addition, and is one of the chief factors in the height and fluffiness of the cake. Deftly handled, it should be necessary to incorporate the other ingredients after the cream of tartar is added to the beaten whites of eggs."

Gold Cakes.

Cream one-half cup shortening and one and one-half cups sugar until thoroughly blended. Add five yolks, one at a time, beat each yolk in before adding the next. Stir in three-fourths cup orange juice and one teaspoon grated orange rind.

Mix two cups sifted cake flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon baking soda, and two teaspoons baking powder. Add to the liquid mixture and beat to a stiff consistency. Grease and flour a narrow bread pan or into a small tube pan and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes or until firm to the touch and delicately browned.

Invert to cool and remove from pan in about five minutes. When cool cover with any preferred flavored icing and sprinkle with coconut or chopped nuts.

Hard Sauce.

Cream one-fourth cup butter or substitute until it is really like thick cream, then work into it a cup of powdered sugar and a teaspoon of cream or evaporated milk. When very light, work in a one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg. Instead of nutmeg a teaspoon of any preferred extract may be used.

GREEN TOMATOES FINE IN PRESERVE OR CHOW

Among the Last Minute Opportunities to Complete Winter Stores.

As small green tomatoes come in, try a few in preserves and chow-chow. They have a flavor all their own and the ripest and reddest tomatoes are rivaled by these uses of the green.

Preserves.

Wash four quarts of small green tomatoes, cut a slice from the stem end of each one, and weigh the tomatoes. Cover with boiling water, let stand five minutes, then drain and cut the tomatoes in thin slices. Add three lemons cut in very thin slices without peeling, three pounds light brown sugar, two teaspoons ground ginger and one cup water. Heat slowly to the boiling point, cover the kettle and boil slowly for one and one-half hours, skimming frequently during the cooking. At the end of that time, remove from fire and let stand until cold, then reheat to the boiling point, boil for five minutes and very slowly for 30 minutes. Pack in sterilized jars and seal at once.

Chow-Chow.

Select four quarts small green tomatoes, wash, then slice in thin slices or chop coarsely. Chop six large white onions and six large green peppers from which the seeds have been removed. Mix the vegetables all together with one cup salt and let stand overnight. Drain thoroughly and rinse with two cups hot water. Drain again and put in a kettle with one quart vinegar, one cup light brown sugar, one ounce white mustard seed, two tablespoons celery seed and one teaspoon black pepper. Heat slowly to the boiling point and boil gently until the vegetables are tender, or for about 40 minutes. Store in a crock or in small glass jars. Makes about three quarts of pickle.

FRESH PEA COMBINATIONS

Boil potatoes and serve with the cooked peas poured over. Season with melted butter, salt and pepper. Combine three cups cooked green peas with 12 cooked young onions, season with salt, pepper and melted butter.

Boil together one pint of green peas and one cup finely sliced young carrots until tender. Season with sugar, salt, pepper and butter.

GRANDMOTHER MAKES RICH OLD CONSERVES

No Skimping in the Recipes of Half a Century Ago.

From an old book of recipes popular 50 years back, are favored with marmalade, conserve, jam and preserves still made every year by one elderly St. Louis woman.

Peach Marmalade.

Pare, stone and weigh the peaches. Weigh three-fourths pound of sugar for each pound of fruit. Put sugar in a bowl or pan and set aside. Extract kernels from one-fourth of peach pits, cut them in small pieces and steep in one cupful of water for 15 minutes. Then strain and set the water aside for use later on. Mash peaches and heat slowly to the boiling point, stirring constantly at first. Boil gently for 45 minutes, stirring frequently and mashing fruit as you stir it. Add sugar, reheat to the boiling point, and boil for five minutes. Skim, add water in which the kernels were steeped, and the juice of one lemon to each three pounds of fruit. Boil for 10 minutes, then pour into sterilized glasses and seal with melted paraffin.

Pear and Pineapple Conserve.

Peel one pound cooking pears and cut in small dice. Add grated rind of one orange and one lemon. Juice of these oranges and lemons, chopped preserved ginger, four slices canned pineapple cut in pieces, and one cup pineapple juice. Cook slowly for 20 minutes until pears are tender. Then measure and add three-fourths cup sugar for each cup fruit and juice. Stir until sugar dissolves and then boil gently until fruit is transparent and golden in color, or for about 40 minutes, stirring occasionally. When done, remove from fire, let stand 10 minutes, stir in one-fourth pound chopped blanched almonds and pour into sterilized glasses. Seal with melted paraffin.

Damson Preserve.

Select four quarts damson plums that are sound and not too ripe. Wash and drain, then prick each plum with a fork. Weigh fruit and allow an equal weight of sugar. Put the sugar in a preserve kettle with one cup water to each four pounds sugar. Heat slowly to the boiling point and then boil for five minutes, skimming frequently. Add plums and boil slowly until fruit is tender but not broken. If cooked too rapidly the plums will fall apart. When done, skim out plums and boil down syrup about one-fourth. Return plums to syrup, reheat to the boiling point and pour into pint jars or a stone crock. Makes about three quarts of preserves.

Grape Jam.

Wash five pounds purple grapes, pick from stems and press grapes to separate skins and pulp. Place pulp in a kettle and heat to the boiling point. Press through a coarse strainer or a colander to remove seeds. Add skins to this strained pulp, measure the whole and add to cup sugar to every two cups of the mixture. Stir until boiling, boil gently for 25 minutes, stirring occasionally, and then pour into sterilized jelly glasses and seal with melted paraffin.

METHOD OF PLANNING MEALS

DEVELOP AND IMPROVE SLOWLY

Planning meals is something more than just buying and cooking food and the subject is an important one in homemaking. Success in meal planning comes through experience, and that experience cannot be gained overnight.

Some people find it easier to plan the day's meals around dinner; some take each meal by itself without much thought for its connection with the others.

The most experienced plan each day's food as a unit made up of three parts, fitting each with the others as regards food values, flavors, combinations and variety. This is the ideal way, but it is one that must be gained by experience. Therefore it is often better in the beginning to take dinner as your starting point and plan the other two meals around it. Thinking of the day's menu as a whole will develop from this.

TOASTS

Mix together three teaspoons cinnamon and one cup powdered sugar. Transfer to a shaker. Toast bread quickly so that it will be soft in center. Butter generously. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon mixture. Cut in strips. Serve on hot plate.

Toast slices of bread on both sides; butter while hot and spread with cream cheese and marmalade which have been thoroughly blended, using three tablespoons cream cheese and one tablespoon of marmalade.

PRETZEL LORE

There are some charming pretzel legends, but the derivation of the word itself bothers searchers. Some say it comes from a German word meaning "little bread," but others believe it is derived from a Latin word meaning "little reward." According to this school of thought, the pretzel is supposed to have been given to children by monks in the long ago, as a reward for having said their prayers well. The twists are said to represent a child's hands in prayer. Another version has it that the twists represent the ropes which bound Christ's hands before crucifixion, and that pretzels were eaten only during holy week in older times.

STANDARD PRODUCTS ARE THE BEST BUY

Canned and Packaged Goods Should Be Carefully Selected.

The advantage of buying advertised, standard products are many and cannot be too strongly emphasized. In the first place, you are assured of the same quality and of uniformity of flavor and appearance. Packaged products are packed under careful supervision and are generally as wholesome as modern methods of packing and sanitation can make them.

Manufacturers and packers keep in touch with research and experimental laboratories—in many cases they maintain their own experts—and they are always on the lookout to improve in any way the value of their products.

Most products are put up in several grades which can be readily distinguished by reading the labels. In canned foods these grades mostly depend on the size and quality of the raw product. Each grade of a standard product is wholesome and packed with the same careful supervision. When you find the brand and grade that suits your pocketbook and your taste, stick to it.

Many Grades and Prices.

Price is not always an indication of value or quality. Canned vegetables, for example, are packed in several sized cans and in several

SMALL PICKLED CUCUMBERS

Use the smallest cucumbers you can get—none should be more than two and a half inches long. These are usually bought by the hundred. To 100 cucumbers allow an ounce of mustard seed, an ounce of whole cloves, two tablespoons salt, one cup sugar and two hot red peppers (chili peppers). Put spices in 3 or 4 small muslin bags. Put cucumbers in a kettle with enough good cider vinegar to fully cover them, add spice bags and chili peppers, cut in slices.

Heat slowly to the boiling point—just as slowly as possible. When the vinegar is just at boiling point, remove from fire, put pickles in pint or half pint jars, cover with vinegar and seal immediately.

Baked Rusk With Cheese.

Put one cup of broken rusk into casserole or baking dish. Add one cup of milk. Cut up one-half pound of cheese and add to rusk and milk. Beat two eggs with a little mustard, salt and pepper, add to mixture in casserole. Stir well together, add bits of butter and bake 20 minutes. Serve at once.

SPECIAL SWEET POTATO PIE

Rub sweet potato through a ricer or coarse sieve so that it will be free from lumps. Add melted butter, spices, salt and sugar. Beat eggs slightly, add milk and combine with the sweet potato mixture. Pour into pastry lined pie plate and bake about one hour until firm, starting with a hot oven and reducing to moderate.

NEW GROCERY TRADE COUNCIL IS FORMED

Initial Steps Include Plan for Better Keeping of Records.

A city-wide campaign to stimulate the keeping of better store records by retail grocers, as one of the essentials of successful business, will be the initial step in the work of the newly-organized St. Louis Grocery Trade Council. The movement forms part of a general effort by the organized grocery trades to extend to this city practical application of the results of the Louisville Grocery Survey and merchandising studies made by the United States Department of Commerce, which will participate in this activity through its branch office here.

Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers of food products have united in this organization which, with the full co-operation and assistance of the Commerce department, will study and apply all available research data to the problems of food distribution; strengthen the grocery retailer by making available to him information regarding successful trade experiences and sound business practices; and organize and carry out such research projects as may be found desirable or necessary to facilitate the solution of food distribution problems.

Co-Operative Program.
The Merchants' Service Committee of the Council is developing a definite program in co-operation with the St. Louis office of the Commerce Department. This program will be presented to a general meeting of representatives of all branches of the local grocery trade early in October. Temporary officers elected to serve until this first annual meeting are: Fred Marty, president of the St. Louis Retail Grocers' Association; president; L. S. Vagnino, St. Louis Association of Manufacturers' Representatives; vice president; Emil Hartman, treasurer, and J. T. Westfall, secretary of the St. Louis Retail Grocers' Association.

THESE ARE GOOD FROZEN DESERTS FOR REFRIGERATOR

Marshmallow Ice.
Two cups marshmallows, one-half cup water, two cups orange juice, two tablespoons lemon juice, two egg whites, pinch salt.
Cut marshmallows in pieces before measuring. Add the water, and heat in the top of a double boiler until the marshmallows are melted. Cool, add the fruit juice, and fold in the egg whites which have been beaten with the salt until stiff. Turn into a freezing tray and let stand until firm. Stir once or twice during the first part of the freezing.

Angel Ice Cream.
Two egg whites, one-half cup sugar, one-quarter cup water, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-third cup maraschino cherries, one cup cream.
Boil sugar and water together until the syrup spins a thread. Pour slowly onto the stiffly beaten whites of eggs, and beat until cool. Fold in the cream which has been whipped until stiff, add the vanilla and the cherries cut in small pieces. Turn into a freezing tray and let stand until frozen. Serves six.

PIES ALWAYS WELCOME
No matter how hot it is, pies are always welcomed, fruit pies especially, also fruit shortcakes, an occasional cake and cookies or twice bread for breakfast once or twice a week.

Plan when possible to bake early in the morning, reheating biscuits quickly before serving, or to take advantage of the oven heat when a roast is being cooked. Keeping a roll of ice-box cookies, or a bowl of biscuit or pie dough in the ice box helps a lot.

STUFFED CELERY
Stuff crisp stalks of celery with a mixture of cream or cottage cheese, chopped pickled beets, a dash of Worcestershire sauce, a little grated onion and salt and pepper to season. Chill the stuffed celery, cut in inch lengths or leave whole and serve on lettuce as a salad, or plain as an appetizer.

The beets will color the filling an attractive red. Chopped cucumber, well drained, may be substituted for the beets.

Ham and Other Sandwiches.
One cup deviled ham, one-half cup stuffed olives, one hard cooked egg, one small onion—Put all ingredients through the meat chopper and moisten with salad dressing. Spread between thin slices of bread.

Olives and Bacon.
Wrap large, pimiento-stuffed olives in very thin slices of bacon, skewering with toothpicks. Crisp in a hot oven or broiler and arrange around a mound of potato chips.

VEGETABLE COCKTAILS INSTEAD OF SALADS

Meal Begins With Tasty Combination Sharpened With Good Sauces.

Salad cocktails are becoming very popular for dinners. They add zest to the meal that follows, and then they shorten the service, making two courses in one.

Food experts tell us that it is a good thing to serve vegetables first as more are eaten before the appetite is dulled with other food. Receipts are given for a combined vegetable cocktail, and a tomato cocktail with oranges and alligator pears.

Vegetable Cocktail.
Arrange for individual service on four small lettuce leaves for each portion. On one leaf put two segments of firm, chilled, ripe tomatoes; on the second a few pieces of crisp, curled celery; on the third four stalks of chilled canned asparagus; and on the fourth six or eight small string beans, cooked whole, drained and chilled. In the center place half a small green pepper filled with any good sauce.

Almost any combination of vegetables may be used—carrots cut in quarters, small whole stewed mushrooms, slices of pickled beet, balls cut from white or yellow turnips sautéed in butter and then chilled—any that combine in flavor, and in which at least one raw vegetable is used. Keep to the rule of a tart vegetable, a crisp one, a bland one and at least one that is strong in color.

Tomato and Fruit.
Cocktail-salad of chilled sliced oranges, slices of ripe alligator pears and small sections of firm tomato is as colorful as it is delicious. Serve with a spicy French dressing made with lemon juice instead of vinegar.

Gingerale-Tomato Cocktail.
A change from plain tomato juice cocktail is one that combines tomato juice and gingerale. Mix one cup tomato juice with two teaspoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, the juice of half a lemon. Chill thoroughly and just before serving add one cup chilled gingerale. Mix and serve at once. Makes four portions. Good for breakfast, lunch, dinner or in-between-times.

Sweetbreads.
Soak the sweetbreads one hour. Boil 20 minutes in salted water to which a few drops of lemon juice has been added. Cut in uniform pieces. Salt and pepper. Dip egg, then in crumbled rusks and the egg again. Fry in deep fat and drain. Serve at once.

HONEY APPLE PIE

Twenty-two crackers, crumbled;
one-third cup butter, one tablespoon sugar, four apples, sliced thin; one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, three tablespoons honey.
Crumble crackers very fine and mix with softened butter and sugar. Press mixture in a thin layer, firmly against the bottom and sides of a buttered pie plate. Fill with thinly sliced apples. Sprinkle with cinnamon and spread with honey.
Bake in a hot oven 25 minutes.

LABOR DAY CALLS FOR ADDITIONAL PLANNING

Three-Day Holiday Means Extensive Outings for Some Families.

Tomorrow afternoon many families will begin their observance of Labor day by going to the country or the Meramec River.

That means lots of supplies to be taken along, and careful planning is required. If it is only to be a one-day picnic, on either Sunday or Monday, it is a little easier, but with that, "be sure there is enough food" is the slogan also.

Canned Goods to the Rescue.
For the longer outing, pack a big variety of canned vegetables, soup, meat, milk and fish in the automobile, for, of course, you have planned a way to serve partial hot meals on the longer jaunt.

Don't forget plenty of bread and butter, several heads of lettuce, fresh tomatoes, peaches and packages of crackers and cookies.
On the day picnic, meals are easier for the heating problem may be eliminated, and coffee in thermos bottles can supply the hot touch. Sandwiches in a tempting variety, salads made the night before and fresh fruit will amply satisfy the outdoor appetite.

Home Meals.
If the holiday is to be observed at home, a substantial menu may be served Monday both at noon and night, for holidays somehow make most people more than ordinarily hungry. We suggest the following meals:

LUNCH.
Tomato juice cocktail
Fried chicken
Mashed potatoes
Creamed white onions
Watercress and orange salad Crackers
Iced or hot tea or coffee
DINNER
Deviled crabs
Potato chips
Mixed sweet pickles
Asparagus and pepper salad
Lemon ice
Nut wafers
Tea, coffee, milk

FILLET OF SOLE EMBELLISHED WITH CREAMED CRAB FLAKES

Haddock, flounder or halibut fillets may be used as satisfactorily as sole. For six servings buy three large fillets and one-half pound crabmeat. Cut fillets in half, brush with melted butter or cooking oil and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place in a greased baking pan and dot with two tablespoons butter. Broil for 10 minutes, basting several times with the fat
that forms in the pan.

As soon as the fish looks flaky, remove from oven and baste with one or two teaspoons lemon juice.
While fish is cooking pick over crab flakes to remove any bits of shell and put in a saucepan with two tablespoons butter, a grating of lemon rind, and a little salt and pepper. Heat slowly, shaking the pan.

When hot, remove from the fire,
add one-quarter cup thin cream or evaporated milk. While it is cooking peel one-half pound mushrooms, cut in quarters, cover and cook slowly for eight minutes. Remove the cover, stir in four tablespoons flour and when well mixed add one-half cup milk. Be careful not to crush the mushrooms. Cook until thickened.

Season with one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, about one teaspoon salt and one teaspoon lemon juice. Put the eggplant on a hot platter, heap the creamed mushrooms on each slice and garnish with minced parsley and small pieces of canned pimiento.

ITALIAN BEEF RAGOUT

Cut cold roast beef in small even shaped pieces to make two packed cupsful. Slice one-half cup white onions and one cup celery as well as three-fourths cup carrots. Chop one-fourth cup parsley. Melt two tablespoons drippings in a saucepan, add the vegetables and cook slowly for 15 minutes in a closely covered pan.
At the end of that time stir in one cup gravy, one cup boiling water, one teaspoon curry powder and a pinch of nutmeg. Simmer for five minutes, add the meat, cover and cook slowly for 40 minutes. Thicken with two tablespoons flour mixed with cold water and serve with boiled rice, noodles or spaghetti.

POULTRY STUFFING

Whatever the type of stuffing, it should be rather dry when it is filled into the bird or it will be soggy when served. The dry stuffing absorbs the juice which drip from the bird during cooking.

TWICE AS CRISP extra nourishing—because SHOT FROM GUNS

why no other cereal appeals
like Puffed
Wheat and Rice

Remarkable... that such dainty crisp grains can be so richly nourishing! Here's the reason. When grains of wheat and rice are shot from guns, every food cell is broken open. Its contents steam cooked. Made so completely digestible that a single dish of Puffed Wheat or Rice, with top milk and sugar, gives the energy value of a baked potato or a lamb chop!

And now Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice have been made twice as crisp as ever before. Twice as good. Get these extra crisp, extra nourishing grains from your grocer today.

Now "Twice-Crisped"!

9000 shares. While many traders had looked for a substantial reaction resulting from the pre-hearing trading, they preferred to catch such a move as it was sharply squeezed, as the forces were evidently deterred to discount in advance a predicted pickup in steel after Labor Day. In other words, the market was left to the many traders had already left town for the week-end.

St. Steel co. men rose about 10 points to touch 50 for the first time in months. A bloc of 20,000 shares of General Motors at 47, up 1 point, traded in the afternoon dealings. OPENING OF BIDDLE MARKET
POSTPONED UNTIL SEPT. 15
Delay Due to Some Unfinished
Construction of Farmers' Stands Already Doing Business.
Opening of the new Biddle market, Twelfth boulevard and Biddle street, which was to have takplace yesterday, has been delayed until Sept. 15. This is due to the fact that some details of the market, have been not been finished.
Tenants of the various stores, all of which have been rented, have been notified by the city to prepare for opening on the new date.
The market, replacing an old structure, cost $103,000. Farmers opening stands, under a roof at one end of the market, have been in use for several weeks.

That Little Girl From Kansas City

Her Name Was Harlean Carpenter
Then, but Now She Is Known as Jean Harlow and She Is One of the Most Glamorous of the Hollywood Cinema Queens.

SCHOOL DAYS . . . Jean at the age of 11.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 1.

MANY are called but few are chosen in Hollywood. Between 30 and 50 thousand names are listed on the registration scrolls, actresses and actors who have pinned their faith to a single star, but you can count the truly great stars on the fingers of your hands. Try it. Less than one chance in a thousand, yet Jean Harlow made it.

Her flair for the spectacular has been a faithful ally. Hollywood thrives on the spectacular. Those who are able to lift matters of routine out of insignificance and turn them into events of importance will always move ahead. This is Harlow's story.

Several months ago the newspapers commented on the search being made for a red-headed girl to play the title role in Katharine Brush's story, "Thousands of Miles From Nowhere." Thousands of girls were made in New York, in Chicago, and on the coast. It remained for the girl not even under contract to M-G-M to claim the role, an assignment of tremendous significance because the girl who got it is famous from Calcutta to Seattle and from Shanghai to East Liverpool for her platinum hair.

Jean's real name is Harlean Carpenter. She was born March 3, 1911, in Kansas City, and her father was a dentist. Ten years the folks of that famous Missouri city knew her. They watched her grow from cradle days to where she was "such a young lady." Then her mother, divorced at that time, took her to Chicago. She stepped from the Barstow school, in her native town, to an exclusive girls' school, Lake Forest, a swanky suburb of the Windy City. There she remained until her mother took her to California.

Meanwhile, however, two distinct and separate personalities had been making and profound impressions on Jean. The first was her grandfather, an elderly, kindly, yet stern gentleman who adored her. The second was a young man, devil-may-care and romantic, whom she married. She was 18 then. The third was a girl, a school chum, who startled Jean by saying: "You have it."

CHARLES "CHUCK" MCGREW was the young man who won Jean Harlow. He thought of everything in the world except money. He didn't have to bother and Jean, used to motor cars and on that score, because the family coffers were heavy. So together they dove head first into life. They swam and danced and traveled and played. They had a good time. Too good a time. Because the practical side of Jean which is as inherent as as natural as her blonde hair, suddenly wanted to know, "where is all this leading?" So she and Chuck talked it over, the result of which was an upheaval. Master McGrew went home to Chicago, leaving his bride with a house, two large cars, two servants, six diamond rings, four bracelets, and a bar pin on one side of the ledger and $3000 worth of unpaid debts on the other.

But necessity is the mother of invention. So one day Jean stood before a tall, dark man with glasses and said, "I want to act in the movies. My name is Harlean Carpenter. The man with the glasses smiled. There was something about this kid that "clicked" with him. He said: "A lot of people have that idea. I'm afraid. Have you ever had a test?" "At least I can provide that much. This way please." That was a momentous occasion in Jean Harlow's life. Somehow she got through with it. When next the man spoke his voice seemed miles away. "We'll phone you," he said; "I'll let you know." Ten days passed, with each hour a day and each day a year. Then one afternoon the telephone rang. "Miss Carpenter? There's a bit in a comedy. Like to try it?" Jean Harlow first graced the screen in a Hal Roach comedy. It was a tiny bit, hardly more than a flash, but the girl was profoundly thrilled. For this effort she received the handsome wage of $5.

My best to help you if times are difficult."

It was a great moment for Argyle. He rose to his feet and his smile was one of triumph. He visualized before him the physical face. He saw the movement of his lips.

"Moran Chambers is dead," he said firmly.

Facial makeup is being toned down in harmony with the duller fall colors. Lipstick won't be so vivid and rouge, applied with a light hand, will be spread more liberally over the cheek. Vivid nail polish is giving way to lighter shades.

JEAN HARLOW . . . she became a red-headed woman.

completion. The final retakes were under way. Indeed, Greta Nissen had already departed the coast, and was in New York to fulfill a stage contract.

And then the world fell out from under the motion picture industry. The makings of 10 years had to be junked and destroyed. The "talkies" had arrived.

HUGHES had staked the fabulous sum of $5,000,000 in the hope of the air. "Hell's Angels" was the industry's supreme contribution to the silver screen.

"To the shelf," cried Hughes with dramatic flourish. "We'll begin all over at the beginning—even if it takes every dime I own. Get Nissen. Get the crews. Get everything!"

But Nissen could not return. Her contract forbade even a brief furlough. Hughes tore his hair.

"I've the very kid, a youngster—beautiful beyond words—a love-lit, gorgeous creature with hair that will dazzle you."

James Hall uttered those glowing words. Ben Lyon wheeled them. With characteristic suddenness Hughes called for the lady, "Jean Harlow, that her name, eh?" They reached her at home late in the evening. She got the part.

WILLIAM R. BURNETT, the Columbus, O. boy who wrote 600 short stories before he sold a line, wrote one more to find himself the author of "Little Caesar," a novel that swept the country. It was timely, and it carried a bunch. Thereafter, everything he wrote was gobbled up by the publishers as well as the movie producers.

"Little Caesar" made a tremendously successful talking picture. Then Burnett turned his hand to the story of a prize fighter, Coke Mason, by name, and called the novel "Iron Man." It was the story of a champion who began to slip and slide, and to a platinum charm-er was attributed a part of his fall. When the movie industry produced "Iron Man," Jean Harlow was the logical choice. Lew Ayres, fresh from his triumphs in "All Quiet on the Western Front," played the title role, while John Miljan, always an accomplished actor, created another of his smooth, villain roles. It was in a scene between Miss Harlow and the "screen's greatest blackguard" that she introduced another innovation. For Mr. Miljan presented her with something that stunned the audience for one startled second before it burst into excited applause. He handed her a sock on the jaw that movie patrons will not forget for a long time.

Few actresses have crowded so much work into so brief a space as Jean did following the release of "Hell's Angels." She appeared in eight pictures in eight months. Often she was working on several pictures at one time, rushing from lot to lot as the schedules dovetailed. Always her roles were glamorous and virtuous ladies.

The Metro contract for seven years followed, as did the picture, with Chester Morris opposite her, and with such stalwarts as Lella Hyams, Lewis Stone, Una Merkel and others in the supporting cast. This picture is the first in which Jean Harlow has been starred out right. But it isn't the last. The future lies undeniably before her, because Jean Harlow is only 21 years old and is riding the crest.

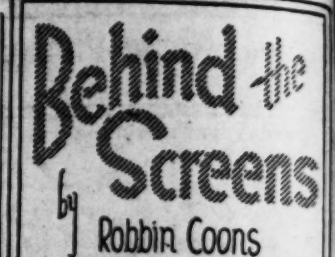

"I have never really been in love—I guess," she says. "We were children infatuated. Marry again? I don't know; right now I hardly think so."

Behind the Screens by Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 30. IANA WYNWARD finds Hollywood very exciting because "one can't plan from one day to the next."

She was taken from the train when she arrived a month ago, and rushed without delay to the studio. In about an hour she had taken a test for a part, had the test approved before it was seen — an unusual compliment — and before the day was over she was being fitted for costumes.

The role, that of Princess Natasha in the tripe, Barrymore film, "Rasputin," has kept her busy ever since.

MISS WYNWARD, an English girl, who faintly reminds of Norma Shearer and yet doesn't resemble her in the slightest degree, has an engaging sense of humor that matches her breezy manner. In sports clothes she might pass for an advertisement for outdoor life, but she confides that her loathing for golf is almost as great as that for bridge or cards in any form. She does, however, like to ride horseback and swim.

"I've had a very ordinary life," she declares, "perfectly normal and happy. I'm the first of my family to go on the stage, and they're not opposing it, but I'm sure, rather proud of me—because I'm upped and did it all by myself."

Two years ago when I was playing in London, M-G-M noticed me and thought I might do for pictures, and this year, when I was playing in New York, the same scout noticed me again, and this time did something about it. So I came out, and here I am, and I see by the papers that my next picture is to be "Reunion in Vienna."

Whether or not she does "Reunion in Vienna" as scheduled, one thing is certain—whenever M-G-M needs a lady to the manner born, Diana Wynward will be right on hand.

Marlene Dietrich has definitely "arrived." The sure proof lies in the fact that someone is being compared to her. For a long time Marlene was compared to Garbo, but now the new German star, Charlotte Susa, is being likened to Dietrich.

Colleen Moore, who collects things, has a group of bracelets on which "miracles of every sort collected from all over the world one at a time, are suspended. There are tiny trinkets of ivory, gold, brass, silver, jade and a variety of other substances that include dogs, cats, birds, hansom cabs, jinnikahs, automobiles, a fan that opens to reveal hidden photographs, a family album, a couple of churches, a kernel, a bird cage—but you get dizzy about this time and lose count.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE
"SEE," Argyle acquiesced. "Well, I don't suppose I should have needed money, anyway. The only thing is there'll be some bargains if America should have a panicky week. I'll get all I want somehow or other, though."

Sir Edward looked thoughtful. The car had come to a standstill outside the very magnificent West End premises of the bank. "You're not thinking of unleashing at all, Mr. Argyle?" he inquired.

His client laughed at him. "My dear Sir Edward," he expostulated, "do you think I'm that sort of a business man? I'm a large dealer and every share I hold is worth its money, and it will be a long time before I'm obliged to sell, unless I want to."

"Would you like to come in and hear the American news?" Argyle asked.

"I'll get it at my office," Argyle replied. "We're through to America every afternoon."

"Thanks for your company, you old Shylock," Argyle laughed, as the car started off. . . .

The news from America was there on his desk. According to credible Argyle, determined not to be flustered, read it line by line, and tested several quotations. They were keeping away from him down below and he was alone in the room. The cables spoke of a fewish storm of selling, selling at any price. Some of the best-known shares on the market were 30 or 40 points down. The day-by-day speculators were being wiped out like flies. Argyle touched his buzzer and summoned Gascoigne. The latter arrived, pale and disheveled.

"I wish to God you were in the House yourself, sir," he cried. "I never want to look on such a scene again. People went perfectly crazy when the earlier American cables began to arrive."

"Silly sheep!" Argyle scoffed. "Look here, Gascoigne, get this into your head, will you?" "I am listening, sir."

"We are very large holders of stocks, some of which, as it happens, are tumbling down. Let them tumble and be damned to them. When they go low enough, we buy, and average. What business have you done this morning?"

"None at all," Gascoigne confessed candidly. "Was there no market for Christophers or Endells or Ellertons?" his employer demanded.

"There was no buying market, sir. They all opened below yesterday's limits. They're six to seven points below it at the present minute and I bought none."

"Why not?" "I simply couldn't bring myself to do it, sir," Gascoigne explained. "I saw them falling all the time. It seemed like throwing money away. Supposing I had bought a hundred thousand pounds' worth at your price when the market opened, we should have lost thirty thousand by now. I disobeyed orders. I know, but that's precisely what would have happened."

ARGYLE assumed an almost academic air. "So far as they go, Gascoigne," he muttered smoothly, "both your argument and your procedure are justified. Remember this, though. A bold purchase on your part might have steadied the market. There's nothing seriously wrong with it."

"I was on the spot, sir," Gascoigne pointed out. "People have lost their heads. My buying wouldn't have amounted to a drop in the bucket."

"Well, let that be an end of it," Argyle observed. "You did your best, according to your judgment, and one can't ask more of any one. Now I'm here, I presume you'll agree that I'm in a position to give my own orders and to insist upon having them carried out?"

"Certainly, sir, but don't buy yet. We shan't reach bottom for weeks."

"Who told you that silly story?" Argyle inquired, caressing his soft, silky mustache.

"Every one believes it, sir," his manager asserted vehemently. "There's another meeting of the bankers summoned for this afternoon and they say all loans will be called in by the end of the week."

"Rubbish!" Argyle snapped. "The banks would soon get into trouble with the Government if they dared to do such a thing. Their business is to foster enterprises, not to kill it. They make their millions out of industry; when industry is in need of help, they must give it to them. You follow me, Gascoigne?"

"Quite well, sir, thank you," was the toneless reply.

"This disturbance, which you call panic," his master continued, "exists largely because no one has the courage to try to stop it. If 500 people are trying to sell and there isn't a single buyer, they equal themselves into a state of terror. Go across to the House now and buy me 2000 Endells. Get them at the best price you can and bring me in a note of the transaction. They were quoting them at 36 this morning. If, as you say, the market is 6 or 7 points down, you ought to get them now at about 30."

"I shall get them at 30, all right," Gascoigne growled. "The trouble is whether they're worth more than 20."

"Do the best you can. In the Flowered moire and brocade taffeta are used for many of the new Victorian type evening dresses. Dinner gowns are made of black satins, crepe Elizabeth roshanara. Many laces are used for evening with the wool begara lace and a velvet extremely popular. Lyons velvet is used for the extreme tight-fitting gowns. Not much transparent velvet is used except for jackets.

Much shirred velvet is seen.

ORTIZ RUBIO RESIGNS AS PRESIDENT OF MEXICO

Quits Post After Two Years of Six-Year Term—Notifies Congress Which Probably Will Name Successor by Nightfall.

FAILING HEALTH GIVEN AS REASON

Retiring Executive Shot Just After Inauguration and in Trouble Ever Since—Contenders for Post.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, Sept. 2.—President Pascual Ortiz Rubio, who in the last few days twice formally denied rumors that he had resigned, sent his resignation to Congress today.

Congress undoubtedly will consider the resignation immediately, and there is a possibility that a new President will be chosen before nightfall, although several technicalities must be straitened out before this can be done.

The resignation was entrusted to Gen. Juan Jose Rios, Secretary of the Interior, who announced that it would be handed to the thirty-fifth Congress at its second session.

Ortiz Rubio stepped down a little more than two and one-half years after inauguration to end out the remaining four years of the late Alvaro Obregon's six-year term. He disclosed his decision to his Cabinet secretly at Chapultepec Castle late yesterday. Cabinet members also resigned to give Congress and the new President a free hand.

Candidates for Presidency.
Most prominently mentioned for the office is Gen. Abelardo L. Rodriguez, Minister of War in the Ortiz Rubio Cabinet, who came into prominence during the Escobar revolution two years ago. Others in the running are Alberto J. Pani, Ortiz Rubio's Minister of Finance, and Gen. Joaquin Amaro, former Secretary of War. Mention of Gen. Rodriguez as successor to Rubio evoked an enthusiastic demonstration by the National Revolutionary party bloc today. Gen. Rodriguez's name was presented as one of four candidates from which the successor was to be selected. This is considered as almost virtual assurance of his choice for the place.

Gen. Jose Rios' announcement, just after midnight, avoided all mention of the President's reason for resigning, but it was generally understood that the reason was failing health. It was reported Ortiz Rubio wished to leave at once for Rochester, Minn., for medical attention.

Neither did Gen. Jose Rios mention the political misunderstandings of recent weeks and the rumors that have flooded the capital. He said merely that the President had communicated "the text of his resignation" to the Cabinet for transmission to Congress.

Ortiz Rubio's troubled term before he had been President two hours, when he was fired on and seriously wounded by a youthful scoundrel. He had been a compromise candidate of the dominant revolutionary party to succeed Obregon, elected in 1928 but assassinated before he could take office. Then came the abortive Escobar revolt with Gen. Calles and Rodriguez taking the field to suppress the movement. In this they were successful, but Ortiz Rubio by then had run into difficulties with appointments. Gen. Calles was twice called on to serve as Secretary of War during Ortiz Rubio's term, and twice prevented by a major crisis.

Then came what appeared to be a trivial dispute between Francisco Ortiz Rubio, the President's brother, and Vincent Estrada Caligal, chief of the Federal District Government over the General (Mexico City) Hospital administration. That was in mid-August, and before Francisco Ortiz Rubio had resigned, as administrator of Calles said he incurred the President's disfavor as arbitrator in a dispute in the hospital when he crossed Francisco.

Gen. Calles sought to remain neutral, but political pressure was reported finally to have forced him to agree to Ortiz Rubio's departure. A "joker" in the Constitution concerning presidential resignations
